The proposed law is a binding ordinance with criminal penalties making Cambridge a city which is nuclear free in that work on nuclear weapons would be prohibited within the city. The Congressional Representatives of Cambridge would be urged to redirect the resources previously used for nuclear weapons towards meeting human needs such as health care and jobs, and the Cambridge Peace Commission would create a committee to study the conversion of nuclear weapons facilities to peaceful applications.

Those engaged in the research, development, testing, evaluation, production, maintenance, storage, transportation and/or disposal of nuclear weapons or the components of nuclear weapons in Cambridge would have until October 1, 1985 to stop such work, while others would be prohibited from starting nuclear weapons work as of the certification of the results of the November 8, 1983 election.

Violators would be subject to up to a $5,000 fine and/or 60 days imprisonment for each violation.
