FOSTER MCGAW

The Baxter Foundation in cooperation with the American Hospital Association, established the FOSTER G. MCGAW prize to recognize and promote hospital excellence in community service. The annual prize is founded on the belief that the integration of the hospital within the community is the cornerstone of hospital achievement.

By acknowledging outstanding community service activities, the FOSTER G. MCGAW prize helps the nation recognize how its hospitals respond to community needs. The excellence demonstrated by prize winners can inspire other hospitals and communities to examine their responsibilities and strive for new solutions to health problems.

Each year a committee composed of prominent individuals awards a $75,000 cash prize to a U.S. hospital that has distinguished itself in servicing its community. In addition, $10,000 prizes are awarded to finalist hospitals. The prize program honors hospitals that have become an integral part of their communities through a substantial depth and breadth of community service programs. Together these programs should constitute a major focus of the hospital's activity and should be aimed at improving the health status or enhancing the quality of life of community members, particularly the poor, the young, and the old.
