JOSE MOREIRA FIGUEIREDO

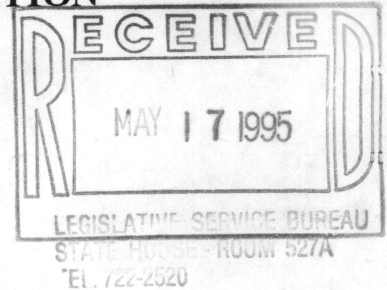

Jose Moreira Figueiredo, the principal of the Charles G. Harrington School in Cambridge, has been selected to receive the "Global Educator of the Year" Award by the Framingham State College Center for Global Education.

Jose has worked diligently over his 20 years as an educator to promote global and multi-cultural education. He is a leader in the two-way bilingual education movement and actively promotes multi cultural education in his school and for the district.

In addition to encouraging global education programs on his home turf, Jose generously shares his expertise and self-designed teaching materials with other teachers and administrators. He is an active participant and presenter in Center programs. He has designed and presents workshops on a curriculum unit on Portuguese-Americans. He also conducts workshops on The Azores, Bilingual and Multi cultural Education.

Re: Global Educator of the Year Award
Date: May 17, 1995

As you requested, here is some information on the Global Educator of the Year Award. I am also enclosing a write-up on Jose Moreira Figueiredo, the award recipient from your district. Please let me know if you need any more information.

The Global Educator of the Year Award was instituted as an annual event three years ago to recognize those teachers and school administrators who have demonstrated a longstanding commitment to internationalizing K-12 education. Award recipients have each gone the extra mile to prepare their students to live and work in an increasingly interdependent global community. Where there were no resources they created their own -- and then generously shared those resources with other teachers across the Commonwealth. Each award winner participates actively in the Bay State Centers for Global Education as presenters, curriculum consultants or advisors in addition to their full-time responsibilities as educators.

Although international studies has recently become a recognized discipline, educators at the K-12 level have never been encouraged to include this information in their curricula. Over the years, especially after geography was removed from the Massachusetts books as a core discipline, it was rare for financial or material resources to be provided to teachers interested in upgrading classroom curricula. Aside from the services of the BSCGE, created in 1987, there was little available in the way of technical assistance for teachers. Teachers had to work hard to find out about global education and even harder to find useful classroom materials. Yet, the recipients of the Global Educator of the Year Award have been working in the field for many years providing the learning tools and environment for their students to develop global understanding. It is for this dedication that we recognize them.
