RECYCLE THIS NEWSPAPER!!

SENIOR CURCUIT

Voting info

Many Cambridge voters have been affected by the recent redistricting and will be represented by different state legislators following the general election in November. Although ward and precinct lines have not changed, some are now in different districts.

SCAN, the Somerville Cambridge Aging Network, is urging elders to learn how redistricting will affect them in the upcoming Sept. 20 primary election and the general election in November.

"Part of the SCAN mission is to educate and inform people about issues relative to elders," says Cheryl Breslin, who coordinates SCAN in her role as Area Agency on Aging Coordinator at Somerville-Cambridge Elder Services. "We want people to vote and to be informed about who they're voting for."

Under redistricting, Cambridge will now be represented by four state representatives and four state senators, rather than three of each. Important to remember include: Sept. 20 — the primary for both parties; Oct. 11 — deadline to register to vote in the general election; Nov. 8 — general election.

It is no longer necessary to register in person to vote. Residents may obtain a registration form by calling the Cambridge Election Commission at 349-4361. The forms are also available at other locations. To register, fill out the form and mail it in.

If you do not know which district you are in or who represents you, call the Election Commission.

On aging well

Older Women Aging Well meets one Sunday a month, 2-5 pm at the Women's Center, 46 Pleasant St. At the Oct. 2 meeting, Dr. Camilla Parham will speak on "How the Medical Industry Targets and Exploits Older Women." Group members are currently aged 60-84; new members are invited (wheelchair accessible). Call 354-8807 for information.

Simmons recognized for volunteer work

Lucille Simmons of Cambridge has been named the "Joseph L. Greeney Award" recipient for 1994. This annual award, sponsored by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs, is given to an individual who best exemplifies the commitment, skill and accomplishments of Massachusetts older volunteers.

She has been a volunteer for Catholic Charities' Foster Grandparent Program for the last 20 years. This program enables elderly volunteers into the school systems to help children with special needs.

"Lucille Simmons has touched the lives and hearts of thousands of children and adults. She is a dedicated volunteer and deserves much recognition for her devotion and commitment to her work and to her community," said Marry S. Harris, director of Foster Grandparent Program.

Franklin P. Ollivierre, secretary of elder affairs, presented a plaque to Simmons at a Sept. 13 reception at the Laboure Center, a member of Catholic Charities, 259 Elm St., Davis Square, Somerville.

Foster grandparents to be honored Sept. 26

Cambridge Mayor Ken Reeves will honor Catholic Charities' Foster Grandparent Program volunteers at an event on Monday, Sept. 26, 5:30-7 pm at Cambridge City Hall on Mass. Ave.

Each foster grandparent who volunteers in the Cambridge school systems to help children with special needs will be presented with a certificate of recognition and thanks. A reception will follow the presentations. For more information on the Foster Grandparent Program, call 623-3338.

The six-week series begins Sept. 21 and will run every Wednesday from 5-6:30 pm through Oct. 26 at Youville Hospital and Rehabilitation Center, 1575 Cambridge St.

The series is designed to answer questions that family members may have about a memory disorder in a loved one. The session topics include: learning to detect Alzheimer's disease, legal and financial planning, research and the future, and treatment options.

All sessions are free but, due to limited space, those interested should call 349-5804 to pre-register. Family members are invited to bring their loved ones with memory disorders, as specially trained staff will work with them during the sessions.

Free health fair for seniors Oct. 1

Mount Auburn Hospital will sponsor a free health fair for seniors in the hospital's lobby and cafeteria on Saturday, Oct. 1, from 9 am to 1 pm.

Gay 'Fighting Irish' fighting for respect, recognition

BY CHARLES R. COLBERT III

The University of Notre Dame, my alma mater, ranks among the nation's top 20 colleges and universities in the category of "Gay students ostracized, discriminated against," according to "The Princeton Review: The Best Colleges." Lesbians receive the same treatment at Saint Mary's College, an independent liberal arts women's school, affiliated with Notre Dame.

There has been an organized gay presence on campus for more than two decades, but the gay student group cannot use its full name (Gays and Lesbians at Notre Dame/Saint Mary's College) or its acronym (GLND/SMC) or any school symbol in advertising in the schools' newspaper.

Gays and lesbians are also prohibited from announcing their meetings on the university's radio station. Because this group is not officially recognized, it receives no financial support and can meet on campus only in the counseling center or under the auspices of campus ministry.

The director of campus ministry acknowledges incidents of harassment. Last year 276 faculty and staff members signed a paid advertisement in the student paper stating: "Lesbian, gay and bisexual members of our community should not have to live in fear. They should not have to fear harassment, the imposition of self-hatred, infringements of intellectual liberty, the loss of employment, physical violence, or sexual abuse."

Ironically, one of the Fighting Irish's most famous sons — Lt. Tom Dooley, a student from 1944 to 1947 — was gay. Dr. Dooley wrote four best-selling books describing his humanitarian efforts in the jungles of Southeast Asia. A 1959 Gallup poll ranked him the seventh most admired man in the country — right behind President Eisenhower and Pope John XXIII. Unknown until publication of Randy Shilts' "Conduct Unbecoming," however, was Dooley's 1956 "undesirable discharge" for homosexuality.

A statue of Dooley with children stands near the grotto on campus and a room in the student center bears his name. Deserving alumni receive humanitarian service awards in his honor.

Despite this familiar presence of gays, administrators still use buzz words such as "gay lifestyle" and "fornication" to discuss homosexuality, while stating that "appropriate measures" — counseling and pastoral ministry — "address the special concerns of gay students."

Here is how officials talk about their gay sons and lesbian daughters:

The South Bend Tribune reported, "As a Catholic institution, Saint Mary's College supports the position of the Catholic church on homosexuality. Because the church does not condone the homosexual lifestyle, the college does not officially recognize gay and lesbian groups on campus."

A draft statement released to a local alumni club stated that "recognition of this [student] organization, particularly in light of the group's history and unofficial activities, could not be seen otherwise than as an acceptance by the university of a gay lifestyle."

One university official wrote to a gay alumnus, "The problem for Notre Dame, as a Catholic university accepting of the church's long-standing teaching on marriage, is to avoid sanctioning groups which advocate a homosexual lifestyle as morally neutral." He continues, "You have every right to disagree with Notre Dame's position, but I can no more satisfy you than I can a heterosexual who considers fornication as an outdated concept."

Such intransigence and misinformation must be challenged. So the Gay and Lesbian Alumni/ae of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's (GALA-ND/ SMC) formed a national organization and held its first Gay Reunion Weekend this summer in South Bend, Ind.

Those in attendance approved key points in the group's mission statement:

■ To promote solidarity and friendship among lesbian, gay and bisexual graduates, faculty and staff.

■ To sponsor, direct and participate in activities — charitable, educational, spiritual, and athletic — which promote a positive gay and lesbian image, increasing the visibility of gay alumni/ae.

■ To provide financial and moral support to the gay students.

■ To improve communication with school officials and initiate a dialogue with more than 200 local alumni clubs.

Although the university includes blacks and Hispanics within a minority network, it excludes an organized gay group. As the executive director of the alumni association explains, "We do things on a geographical basis or race. We do not do things based on religious beliefs or sexual preference. In other words, we do not have a group of N.D. alumni who are Episcopalians."

Consequently, GALA-ND/SMC has been inaccessible to more than 100,000 alumni, parents and friends nationwide. Yet our organization represents the unrecognized minority. Many of us feel alienated from and unwelcome at our alma mater — unless, of course, we remain in the closet.

Despite its unwillingness to embrace its gay and lesbian students, Notre Dame has made some progress in acknowledging the existence of homosexuality.

For the last two years, the alumni association has sponsored a seminar, "The Family and Homosexuality: Learning and Listening," that permits gay men and lesbians to speak. It is one of the best-attended discussions during the annual reunion weekend. And the panelists make it clear: Although often confused with notions of lifestyle, there is no such thing as the "homosexual lifestyle." Gay people exist in all socioeconomic classes, regions, ethnic, racial and religious groups, rarely fitting the myths and stereotypes.

Administrators should stop hiding behind the shibboleth of the "gay lifestyle" and participate in an honest dialogue. We gay Fighting Irish deserve the same privileges — no more no less — as everybody else. And we intend to press for them. As our numbers keep increasing, eventually Notre Dame will acknowledge us.

Cambridge resident Charles R. Colbert III earned his bachelor's degree in 1978 and serves as co-chair of Gay and Lesbian Alumni/ae of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.

Street mystery carries lesson in history

BY DARLEEN GONDOLA BONISLAWSKI

I enjoyed reading the (Sept. 29) Chronicle article describing the history and folklore surrounding Max Avenue, aka Parnell Street, in East Cambridge, and Mayor Emeritus Alfred Vellucci's probing questions: "What happened to Parnell Street? Where did it go? Who did what to it?"

Since I too love history and a good mystery, my interest was piqued by the comments of several residents and city officials all of whom offered helpful but differing information. So, as a city election commissioner who was born in East Cambridge, I decided to take a stab at answering the questions.

When writing the story the Chronicle reporter may not have been aware of additional information that is available at the election commission. In addition to conducting elections, and enforcing the city's ethics law we conduct a yearly city census as required by state law, which culminates in our publishing an annual street index and street list containing every residential street located within Cambridge.

Our census data contains the name, address, occupation, voting status, nationality if not a US citizen, and birthdate of Cambridge residents who respond to the census. It is available for free as a public record, and in book form for a reasonable fee. Thus, after reading the article I researched the street list and immediately found what I was looking for.

Specifically, the Chronicle article noted that old city records indicated Parnell Street was renamed Max Avenue in 1930, and that there was "nothing to show of Parnell Street any time after 1930." In fact, the election commission's records conclusively prove that Parnell Street existed until 1980.

However, in 1981 Parnell Street and Max Avenue were both listed, and it marked the first time Max Avenue appeared in our records. Thus, this supports Mayor Vellucci's claim that the street at one time had two names. City council records of that year may shed additional light on the name change, but in any event, in 1982 Parnell Street disappeared forever from our street list, and continues to be known today only as Max Avenue.

Still, after researching the public records I knew I couldn't be completely satisfied until I consulted my best East Cambridge source, my mother, Josephine Norcia Blair. Born near Max Avenue, aka Parnell Street, she unequivocally informed me that as a young teenager in the early 1930s she had friends on what was then Parnell Street, and that in the years to follow it continued to be known by that name.

Her memory of what was located at the corner of Cambridge and Parnell streets differed from that of Mayor Vellucci and Charlie Sullivan of the Historical Commission. She recalled that the site housed a "McClellan's 5 & 10 Cents Store" that sold everything from "pretzels to socks."

The fact that the above public records, and community recollections contradict the 1930 city data can be exciting fodder for local historians, political junkies and conspiracy buffs, but I think city engineer Bob Patterson summed it up best when he said the street/avenue's status and history "are up for debate and research."

There is of course a wonderful lesson to be learned in all of this, which is to cherish the oral history, folklore, and remembrances that make up the many cultural fabrics of our city.

Thank you to the Chronicle for recognizing its importance to our community.

The writer is a member of the Cambridge Election Commission.

Gay celebration planned for BC-Notre Dame game

BY AMY MILLER
Chronicle Staff

You'd think Chuck Colbert would be considered a natural for the cheering, barbecues and chauvinistic hoopla around this weekend's Notre Dame/Boston College football extravaganza.

After all, the 38-year-old Cottage Street man played football in high school, was on the student government at Notre Dame and became an officer in the Navy after college.

But when Colbert and his friends get together with their banners, burgers and cheers this weekend, he is quite aware of the stereotypes he'll be busting.

"There is nothing extraordinary or bizarre about a gay Notre Dame alumni group convening when we're playing in Boston against an archrival," insists Colbert, a 1978 graduate of the famed Indiana school. "We share camaraderie and school spirit as well as any other Notre Dame alumni."

If being openly gay in this country is still a challenge, being gay and out in a Catholic college can be excruciating. Still, Colbert is determined to show that one can be homosexual, Catholic and very enthused about football, even with an alma mater that's less than receptive to gays.

When the only two Catholic colleges with a big reputation in football meet for their first Boston game since 1975, gay alumni groups from both schools will be meeting for the traditional partying.

Lambda Association of Boston College Graduates and Notre Dame's GALA will be cheering before a large screen TV at Murray House on the BC campus in Newton. There will be grilled hamburgers and hot dogs and beer, just like at all the other picnics and parties filling the BC world on Saturday.

"A lot of our people still love football and still love their alma mater, Notre Dame," Colbert said as he unfurled a banner with the words, "Lesbian and Gay Fighting Irish of Notre Dame/St. Mary's."

But Colbert knows his tailgate party will attract attention. Though it was not planned to ruffle feathers, Colbert believes visibility is the key to ending discrimination against gays.

"Some Notre Dame gay alumni love football and are going to cheer for their alma mater despite the pain and hurt of being part of a gay group [at Notre Dame]," he said.

The head of the Lambda group at BC, Bob Boutwell, said the party is less important to him as a sports fan, than as a part of giving students today freedoms that were lacking during his tenure at BC in the late 1960s.

"The tailgate party doesn't mean anything because I really don't care about football," said Boutwell, 47, of Jamaica Plain. "But I'm the co-chair of the Lambda group ... and it's a way of reclaiming your own past and preventing what happened to us from happening to current generations."

BC's Lambda was started in 1992 by a small group of graduates and now includes several hundred friends and graduates on the mailing list. Although Notre Dame has had a gay alumni group for 20 years, Colbert helped start up a new GALA, which includes the sister school of St. Mary's, after the 1993 Gay March on Washington. The association held its first gay reunion this June and the mailing list has grown from 67 people a year ago to 400 people today. Five to seven names a week are added, Colbert said.

> "I love my alma mater despite how they treat me as an openly gay male."
> Chuck Colbert, co-chair Gay and Lesbian Alumni Assoc. of Notre Dame/St. Mary's

After GALA put out it's first press release this summer, the South Bend Tribune covered the tensions between gay alum and the school. Getting press and members may be no problem. Getting university recognition has been another thing.

"I understand Notre Dame is in a difficult position because ... a big piece of the school is its Catholic identification," said Colbert. But he noted Georgetown and other Catholic universities have non-discrimination policies. Alumni, fund-raising and PR stop the school, not the church, he said.

"They need to keep a distance from us because they think they would get in hot water with some very conservative Catholics who can't stand the idea there are gay Catholics," he said. "It's a shock when they find out there are gay people who are good citizens and love football and are faithful Catholics."

Colbert, who converted from Methodism during college, realized he was attracted to men during his college years. He came out during his last year at Notre Dame, and has come to believe in the importance of being open with his sexuality, both for himself and to erase bias and misconceptions.

In his recent bid for vice chair of the Gay and Lesbian Alumni Association of Notre Dame/St. Mary's, he stressed this point. "Invisibility is our greatest challenge," he wrote in a bio in the GALA newsletter. "While I understand some of us are not ready to be out to the public, those of us who are must assume roles of leadership and responsibility to get the word out."

Colbert's commitment to visibility has led him to write numerous articles on being gay, including articles that highlighted his effort to march in the St. Patrick's Day Parade and to organize gay and lesbian alumni of Notre Dame.

As a veteran of the Navy, Colbert also spoke out for gays in the military, remembering the agony of his own closeted years.

Now, Colbert sees his work with alumni as another way to shatter expectations about gay people.

"I love my alma mater despite how they treat me as an openly gay male," said Colbert, who is doing his master's work at Harvard on gay men in the workplace.

Last year, he attended his 15th year reunion at Notre Dame with partner Jack Spofford, 59, a lawyer and mediator.

But beyond that, he just likes football, Catholicism and Notre Dame.

Barbecue starts before BC/ND kickoff

The Boston College and University of Notre Dame/Saint Mary's College gay alumni/ae organizations announce the first BC/ND Gay Barbecue to be held Saturday, Oct. 8, 11:30 am — a half hour before the noontime kickoff of the BC-Notre Dame football game.

The event takes place at Murray House at the intersection of Hammond and Beacon streets on the BC campus. The barbecue features burgers, hot dogs, a deli platter, along with beer wine and soda for $10 per person. For more information, call 522-6889 or 661-1466.

Voting info

Many Cambridge voters have been affected by the recent redistricting and will be represented by different state legislators following the general election in November. Although ward and precinct lines have not changed, some are now in different districts.

SCAN, the Somerville Cambridge Aging Network, is urging elders to learn how redistricting will affect them in the upcoming Sept. 20 primary election and the general election in November.

"Part of the SCAN mission is to educate and inform people about issues relative to elders," says Cheryl Breslin, who coordinates SCAN in her role as Area Agency on Aging Coordinator at Somerville-Cambridge Elder Services. "We want people to vote and to be informed about who they're voting for."

Under redistricting, Cambridge will now be represented by four state representatives and four state senators, rather than three of each. Important to remember include: Sept. 20 — the primary for both parties; Oct. 11 — deadline to register to vote in the general election; Nov. 8 — general election.

It is no longer necessary to register in person to vote. Residents may obtain a registration form by calling the Cambridge Election Commission at 349-4361. The forms are also available at other locations. To register, fill out the form and mail it in.

If you do not know which district you are in or who represents you, call the Election Commission.

On aging well

Older Women Aging Well meets one Sunday a month, 2-5 pm at the Women's Center, 46 Pleasant St. At the Oct. 2 meeting, Dr. Camilla Parham will speak on "How the Medical Industry Targets and Exploits Older Women." Group members are currently aged 60-84; new members are invited (wheelchair accessible). Call 354-8807 for information.

Simmons recognized for volunteer work

Lucille Simmons of Cambridge has been named the "Joseph L. Greeney Award" recipient for 1994. This annual award, sponsored by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs, is given to an individual who best exemplifies the commitment, skill and accomplishments of Massachusetts older volunteers.

She has been a volunteer for Catholic Charities' Foster Grandparent Program for the last 20 years. This program enables elderly volunteers into the school systems to help children with special needs.

"Lucille Simmons has touched the lives and hearts of thousands of children and adults. She is a dedicated volunteer and deserves much recognition for her devotion and commitment to her work and to her community," said Marry S. Harris, director of Foster Grandparent Program.

Franklin P. Ollivierre, secretary of elder affairs, presented a plaque to Simmons at a Sept. 13 reception at the Laboure Center, a member of Catholic Charities, 259 Elm St., Davis Square, Somerville.

Foster grandparents to be honored Sept. 26

Cambridge Mayor Ken Reeves will honor Catholic Charities' Foster Grandparent Program volunteers at an event on Monday, Sept. 26, 5:30-7 pm at Cambridge City Hall on Mass. Ave.

Each foster grandparent who volunteers in the Cambridge school systems to help children with special needs will be presented with a certificate of recognition and thanks. A reception will follow the presentations. For more information on the Foster Grandparent Program, call 623-3338.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
ROBERT W. HEALY
City Manager

RICHARD C. ROSSI
Deputy City Manager

August 1, 1994

To The Honorable, The City Council:

I am hereby requesting the rescission of the $3,000,000 included in the FY95 Public Investment Fund appropriation to fund the capital needs of the Emergency Communications Department. The original appropriation was to be funded through the sale of Engine 7 (located at 350 Main Street), Deacon and Dock Streets. As the City Council is aware, the sale of the fire station has been delayed because of a Historical Commission decision which prevents the issuance of a demolition permit.

Since the sale of the fire station has been delayed, the City would not be following a prudent fiscal policy and the Department of Revenue would not approve a tax rate which included proceeds from a land sale which had not yet taken place. Therefore, I am requesting that an appropriation and authorization to borrow $3,300,000 be approved to finance this project. The original $3,000,000 appropriation only included funds needed for the project during FY95 while the $3,300,000 includes funds needed for the complete project. Because the debt incurred for this purpose will increase the burden on the Debt Service budget (approximately $500,000 annually), and because I am concerned about the City's ability to concurrently bond both this project and a new youth center for Eastern Cambridge, it is still my hope that debt will ultimately not be issued for this project, and that the sale can ultimately take place and there will be sufficient proceeds from the sale to cover this project.

Very truly yours,

Robert W. Healy
City Manager
