MAYOR REEVES

WHEREAS: The rich artistry of music is an adroit form of communication and unity transcending inordinate tragedies, wars and misunderstandings between countries, nations and the world; and

WHEREAS: For more than a decade the Ethnic Heritage Ensemble, a trio whose musical arrangements and presentations embrace all categories, from sounds of ancient times tempered with the sounds of today's contemporary urban life; and

WHEREAS: This multi-talented legendary Ensemble composed of their founder, Kahil El'Zabor, often referred to as "Renaissance Man", Edward Wilkerson and Joseph Bowie, have touched and dazzled audiences all over the world. Their unique creative range of music holds them spellbound; and

WHEREAS: Members of the Ethnic Heritage Ensemble, having experienced both frustrations and great success, serve as mentors and role models to young black males. This scenario gives an awareness of their possibilities to rise above life's obstacles if they channel their mental perspectives in significantly constructive directions; and

WHEREAS: The Ethnic Heritage Ensemble, in achieving international notoriety and recognition, have signed a major contract with Chameleon Records, a subsidiary of Warner Brothers; now therefore be it

RESOLVED: That this Cambridge City Council does hereby congratulate the Ethnic Heritage Ensemble for their long term achievements and contributions to the renderings and enjoyment of the world of music.
