Resolved SEC

Founded in 1986, the Cambridge Partnership for Public Education is an independent, non-profit membership organization that supports educational programs and professional development in the Cambridge Public Schools. We do this by leveraging resources, funds and expertise from businesses, higher educational institutions and community services. Our members include large and small businesses, four institutions of higher education, community services, city representatives, civic organizations, and the Cambridge Public Schools.

The Crystal Award For Preeminence in Teaching 2000

Sponsored by

The Cambridge Partnership for Public Education

The Crystal Award for Preeminence in Teaching was established to recognize and reward outstanding teaching in the Cambridge Public Schools. In addition to the recognition at the awards ceremony at MIT, the award is composed of membership on the Superintendent's Task Force for the Advancement of Teaching, a $2,000 cash award, and a crystal trophy.

Special thanks to the members of the Crystal Award Selection Committee:

Kathleen Granchelli, Director of Communications, Draper Laboratory
Marlene Hobel, Vice President of Communications, Camp Dresser & McKee
Marion Darlington-Hope, Professor, School of Management, Lesley College
Eric Klopfer, Assistant Professor, MIT Department of Urban Studies & Planning
Ron Pepe, Director of Human Resource Development, W.R. Grace & Co.
Paul Reville, Director of the Pew Forum, Harvard Graduate School of Education
