The Commonwealth Award of the Boston Society of Architects (BSA) was established in 1985 to acknowledge an uncommonly positive influence on awareness of the built environment and the public's role in shaping that environment. The Cambridge Historical Commission was honored for the extraordinary impact it has had since 1963, when it was established, on the preservation and enhancement of the City of Cambridge. In particular, said BSA President Michael Hicks, "The Commission has demonstrated for communities everywhere how community residents can shape and enrich our neighborhoods, our cities and our towns."
