To the City Council, Cambridge, Massachusetts:

We are a citizens group that is actively--and successfully--combating crime in our neighborhood through block watches, meetings and heightened community awareness. We have worked closely with Chief Paolillo and his officers in the past two years, and we have found them to be most helpful.

We are watching with interest and concern the events that began January 1 with the alleged attack on a bicyclist at Harvard and Dana Streets, followed by the arrest of suspects, the protest by parents and the report to the City Manager. Our experience has shown us the importance to public safety of an aroused grass-roots interest as well as the need for good police-community relations.

We support a just and open examination of the events as well as further discussion about police-community relations. Ultimately, the police of any community must be accountable to the citizens.
