

Should Policemen Freeze?

While there is much to be said on the subject of taking so many police off the trodden beat and placing them in automobiles; while this newspaper has had words to say about how some of these police run the automobiles in defiance of traffic regulations, the fact remains that many policemen are in motor cars and are doing their duty—frequently with honor to themselves and to the department.

Facing the fact that we are to keep these men in automobiles, the department should not make them suffer unnecessarily. It is unnecessary suffering for policemen to sit for eight hours in an automobile during cold weather. The policemen must remain in the cars, except in emergencies, in order to hear radio calls.

It would not be amiss, therefore, for the department to equip police cars with heaters. In fact, for good service, it should be done. This is no coddling, but efficiency.

Boston Herald - Dec 11, 1934

These coats illustrate beautifully the return of squirrel as a socially prominent fur. The natural squirrel from the steppes of Russia is caressingly soft with a clearness of tone that is immensely flattering.

Caracul Coats

$395

$495

Beautifully flat, supple skins, moire marked, have a glorious lustre! Silver fox, rich with bright silver, sweeps around the shoulders and over the bosom in a lavish collar. Another model has a youthful, rippled caracul collar.

City of Cambridge

In City Council

December 11, 1934.

ORDERED:-

That His Honor the Mayor be and hereby is requested to recommend an appropriation of a sum sufficient to equip police cars with heaters.

DEC 11 1934

14

Frederick H. Burke

Order relating to appropriation for equipping police cars with heaters.

Dec 9
A

Dec. 11, 1934

W. Gibson