that, in fact, the actual organization of the work of the Commission, or of the various departments, is not a mere administrative matter, but a matter of policy, and one which is of great importance to the Commission, and to the public interest.

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific information required.

2. Next, gather relevant data and information. This can be done through research, interviews, or other methods that provide the necessary background and details.

3. Once the data is collected, it is important to analyze it carefully. This step involves looking for patterns, trends, and any other insights that can help in understanding the problem.

4. After analysis, the next step is to develop a solution or answer. This should be based on the findings from the analysis and should address the original problem or question.

5. Finally, it is essential to communicate the results clearly. This can be done through a report, presentation, or other means that effectively convey the findings and conclusions.
