- WHEREAS: Over the centuries Irish culture has spread to all parts of the globe; and
- WHEREAS: Irish people have moved across the world with their culture; and
- WHEREAS: Eastern Massachusetts is one such place where the Irish have lived, worked, and produced generations of Irish-Americans; and
- WHEREAS: The Cambridge area boasts some of the most significant synergy between the US and Ireland; and
- WHEREAS: Film and Television in Ireland have experienced a true renaissance in the last two decades; and
- WHEREAS: The state of media distribution in a global marketplace makes it tremendously difficult to view Irish film and television outside of Ireland itself; and
- WHEREAS: Film Festivals are the beating heart of film culture, bringing together a community of people who share common interest and, by being there, participate in a common culture; and
- WHEREAS: To produce a film festival that consistently maintains such high quality and visibility requires a very special person; and
- WHEREAS: Peter Flynn has shown vision, energy, and dedication to the Magner's Irish Film Festival celebrating its 10th Anniversary. Peter's tireless work for the festival has brought together a community of people defined by a passion for film and Irish culture. As the Festival Director, Peter has played a pivotal role in bringing Irish film and television to Cambridge and US audiences enabling all of us to share in this vital cultural experience; now therefore be it
