WHEREAS: Cambridge is home to many who use their time, talents, and energies to create more just, peaceful, and safe communities; and

WHEREAS: Cambridge has many organizations and individuals promoting issues of peace and justice both locally and globally. This important work is done in a variety of ways and on a range of issues—from people who work for peace in families, schools, congregations, and neighborhoods to those working across the United States and internationally; and

WHEREAS: The Cambridge Peace Commission has created Peace and Justice Awards, which recognize individuals and organizations in Cambridge working for peace and social justice by soliciting the nominations of people or programs that build bridges among people, those who stand for peace and justice initiatives particularly in these times of conflict, war, and divisions, and who may be lifelong peace and justice makers, as well as those among us whose daily lives may be inspirations to their community; and

WHEREAS: Bet MacArthur has been chosen by the Cambridge Peace Commission from among more than fifty nominees to receive a Peace and Justice Award for her work that began with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) and Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) canvassing in rural counties to register African-American voters. She is also honored for her work in Cambridge, which began when she moved here in 1966, working as a member of the Pequod Collective, an "alternative" community mental health center in Harvard Square, and continued in her work as a licensed independent clinical social worker and community organizer who has helped individuals, couples, groups and non-profit organizations from her office in Central Square since 1983. She is a co-founder of the original Central Square Neighborhood Coalition, as well as a start-up consultant to the Jefferson Park Neighborhood Health Center, the Boston Area Rape Crisis Center, the Cambridge Women's Center, and the Cambridge Lavender Alliance, she has served many years on the Board of the Cambridgeport Problem Center (now Community Legal Services and Counseling Center), and was a recent past Chair of the Cambridge Commission for Persons with Disabilities; and
