Artisoft may separate Tucson software unit

Software maker Artisoft Inc. said it's considering separating its communications software business to focus on making software that routes telephone calls to personal computers. Cambridge-based Artisoft's options include spinning off its Communications Software Group, selling it, or using a leveraged buyout, president and chief executive T. Paul Thomas said. The unit is based in Tucson. The market would value Artisoft higher if it focused on its software-based telephone systems, which is a faster-growing segment of the company's business, Thomas said. The technology is less expensive than network systems, which many businesses use, and it's easier and less expensive to upgrade if businesses grow and need more telephone capacity, he said. Artisoft shares rose $\frac{1}{8}$ to $6\frac{3}{4}$. (Bloomberg)

Fleet is recognized by Working Mother

Fleet Financial Group was named for the first time to Working Mother magazine's list of 100 best companies for working mothers, announced last night in New York City. Fleet was cited for its "Invest in People" program, which includes flexible working arrangements, mentoring and training programs, access to day-care centers, financial support for adoptive parents, and help with elder care. Approximately 42 percent of Fleet's top-earning employees are women. Other Massachusetts companies named on the list are Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Lotus Development Corp., and Stride Rite Corp.

Ex-Harshbarger aide named to FTC position

Barbara Anthony, a top consumer official in former Attorney General Scott Harshbarger's office, was appointed Northeast regional director of the Federal Trade Commission. Anthony, who was chief of Harshbarger's public protection bureau for eight years, will be based in New York City and be responsible for New Jersey, New York, and the six

New England states. The FTC recently reconfigured its regional offices. Previously, the regional office for this area was located in Boston.

Troubled Hydro-Quebec put on auction block

Fifteen Vermont electric utilities plan an unusual auction later this year: They will offer to pay someone to take the burdensome Hydro-Quebec contract off their hands. The $4 billion Hydro-Quebec deal, signed 10 years ago, now forces Vermont utilities to buy electricity for almost twice what it is worth in today's market. By turning the contract over to a third party, the utilities hope to reduce their costs and electricity rates in Vermont — rates the US Department of Energy predicts will be the highest in the nation next year. To compensate the contract's new owner for its above-market energy prices, the utilities would make an upfront lump-sum payment. (AP)

Shipyard renovation seen getting boost

The stalled renovation of Quincy's Fore River Shipyard may have gotten a boost. The shipyard's owner met with Greek Defense Minister Akis Tsohatzopoulos to discuss the shipyard's bid to refurbish four Greek Navy destroyers. On Wednesday, two companies involved in a dispute that threatens the completion of the project agreed to a procedure to try to resolve their differences, according to a shipyard official. Officials from Massachusetts Heavy Industries Inc., the shipyard's owner, met in Washington with Maritime Administration officials to iron out several problems, including a dispute with general contractor O. Ahlberg & Sons of Rhode Island. Ahlberg walked off the project in August to protest a $3 million pay dispute with MHI. The contractor was subsequently fired by MHI with the Maritime Administration's approval. The Maritime Administration also asked Ahlberg's insurance company, CNA Financial Corp. of Chicago, to honor the performance bond guaranteeing the completion of the renovation work. (AP)

Raytheon awarded $43.5m in Navy pacts

Raytheon Co. said it was awarded two contracts by the US Navy. The first contract concerns production of six OT-134A continuous wave illuminators for the Korea Navy through the foreign military sales program, and is valued at $28.3 million. The second pact is for modification kits to upgrade the MK 48 torpedo inventory, valued at $15.2 million. Work on the first contract is expected to be completed by 2005, while work on the second is slated to be complete by February 2001. (Dow Jones)

Bread & Circus parent to form Internet unit

Austin, Texas-based Whole Foods Market Inc., the biggest US natural foods grocer and parent company of the Bread & Circus, is forming an Internet subsidiary and expects to sell shares in the venture in a plan to build the premiere Web site for natural products, and nutrition and health care information. The plans are among a series of actions announced by Whole Foods that include closing two units, buying a $20 million stake in another company, and taking $9.5 million in writeoffs. Whole Foods said the initiatives would reduce earnings by 18 cents to 26 cents in its fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. The Internet subsidiary, WholePeople.com, is being formed by Whole Foods' Amrion Inc. nutritional supplement business and its WholeFoods.com e-commerce operations. WholePeople.com plans to debut its Web site early next year. Whole Foods shares fell 5/16 to 36 9/16 before trading was halted pending news. The announcement was made after the close of US markets. (Bloomberg)
