The Boston Area Rape Crisis Center (BARCC) is a national and international leader in providing rape crisis services. Since 1973, BARCC has been providing services to survivors of rape and sexual assault. BARCC is the second oldest rape crisis center in the United States and one of the largest rape crisis centers in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. BARCC's mission is to provide free rape crisis intervention services to survivors of rape and sexual assault, their families and friends, and the professionals who support them. Our services enable survivors to regain control of their lives and their healing. Because we believe that education is key to social change, BARCC offers free community education programs designed to help change behaviors that can lead to rape and to lower the community's tolerance of all forms of sexual violence. More than 120 volunteers donate thousands of hours each year providing 24-hour crisis counseling and advocacy, short-term face-to-face individual and group counseling and professional and public education. All survivor services are provided free of charge and are available in both English and Spanish. BARCC is an independent, nonprofit, tax-exempt organization, and a recipient of United Way funding.
