

The Ladies of Cambridge are deeply sensible of the privileges and blessings they enjoy in their beautiful City, especially those who reside on streets comparatively quiet, are aware that there are some annoyances or troubles, which cannot be avoided - that there are others which might be dispensed with, one of which is the yelling of the fruit and berry vendors, One could bear it a few times but for several months, every hour of the day, makes it an intolerable nuisance. In many cities this street nuisance has been prohibited by law and we pray that there may <sup>be</sup> a check at least Mrs A A Stratton and many others
