The ticket to a new apartment?

By Jay Weaver
Staff writer

Since the term "Yuppie" was coined a few years ago, they've been ubiquitous in Cambridge: Fliers advertising whopping monetary rewards for information leading to the rental of a rent-controlled apartment.

They've also become rather predictable and boring like almost all ads.

But a few weeks back, two graduate students dreamed up a fresh, enticing hook to snag a prestigious apartment in this competitive market: They're offering "yuppie tickets" — 750 money.

"I wanted to set myself apart from the flood of people offering money as a reward," said Mark Polofsky, 25, of Brookline. "So I decided to use the one thing I had that most people didn't: Celtics tickets."

Polofsky and his roommate, Kari Tannenbaum, 25, have offered to trade an informant a pair of tickets to any two Celtics games in the 1987-88 season for information leading to the rental of a one-bedroom apartment in either Brookline or Cambridge. Their offer includes playoff games.

They are willing to throw in another pair of tickets to a third game if the apartment is rent controlled. "Our search is for an affordable apartment," said Polofsky, who plans to attend Harvard Business School in the fall. "Rent control would be a bonus."

They hope to find an apartment with rent below $750, he said, adding that it must be within a half mile of the T.

Polofsky and Tannenbaum, a third-year student at New England Law School, must put themselves on a tighter budget since they will both be paying bigger bills, without the benefit of full-time employment, in the fall.

Asked if he supports the system that has politically divided Cambridge for nearly 20 years, Polofsky said, "I don't believe in rent control. It's not a good system."

After all, "I'm going to Harvard Business School," he quipped.

If you're a Celtics fan and have a lead on an apartment, you might want to call either Polofsky or Tannenbaum at 713-0167.

BBN signs for Alewife building

Bolt Beranek and Newman Inc. recently signed a 10-year lease for 250,000 square feet at 150 CambridgePark Dr. The transaction is the largest single lease of first class office space in more than ten years for a communications surrounding Boston.

The 150 CambridgePark Dr. will allow Bolt Beranek and Newman to consolidate in one building the marketing, engineering and administrative functions of its communications subsidiary, BBN Communications Corporation. A world leader in the growing government and commercial markets for private wide-area communications networks, BBN Communications is credited with pioneering the packet switching technology upon which these networks are based. BBN employs 2,500 people worldwide, 1,700 of whom are based in Cambridge, making BBN the seventh largest Cambridge employer. The expansion to CambridgePark provides BBN with needed future growth options.

According to Sam Altretreuer, Spaulding and Slye vice president and project manager, BBN is an important addition to the CambridgePark community. "BBN's decision to come to CambridgePark ratifies the investment decision we made in 1982. While over twenty-five companies have taken space to date, this is the first large block of space we have leased at once, and is consistent with the trend of CambridgePark's increasing appeal and acceptance," he said.

CambridgePark is the largest private development to date in the revitalization of the Alewife section of Somerville which has witnessed dramatic improvements in the past few years. The primary stimulus for redevelopment of the area is the $80 million MBTA Alewife Station which serves as a transportation hub for commuters west of Boston, the bus and subway service and commuter parking for 3,000 cars. The area was downzoned by the city in 1980 in order to bring the expected development in line with the traffic capacity of the regional highway system, and a master plan, "the Alewife Revitalization Plan" was published as a guideline for development. In the late seventies the area was in rapid decline with many buildings abandoned, and others occupied by struggling steel fabrication firms. Since 1983, five new office buildings, totalling 750,000 square feet have opened.

The BBN lease, which was brokered by Polly B. Bryson, assistant vice president, and Matthew Driver, vice president, both of Spaulding and Slye Real Estate Brokerage, culminates a recent surge in activity at CambridgePark. Eleven other companies moved to CambridgePark in the first half of 1987. Of the 43,000 square feet completed to date at 125 and 150 Cam-bridgePark Dr., 98 percent is currently leased. In addition, 160 CambridgePark Dr., which is scheduled for completion in early 1989, is already 23 percent pre-leased.

The CambridgePark master plan calls for six additional buildings to be built, bringing the project total to 1.2 million square feet in eight buildings. While the bulk of this project will be in office space, the plan provides for 30,000 square feet of retail space including three restaurants, a bank and convenience retailers.

CambridgePark is a joint venture of Copley Real Estate Advisors and Spaulding and Slye, and is one of several joint ventures the two companies have developed together. Other projects include New England Executive Park in Burlington, Massachusetts; Rockledge Executive Plaza in Bethesda, Maryland; and Shady Grove Executive Center in Rockville, Maryland.

ON TRACK — Coach Bob McGuire and three Cambridge Boston and Latin School students were named to the 1987 "Boston Globe" all scholastic outdoor track team. McGuire was named coach of the year after seeing his team compile an 18-0 record and three straight suburban league championships. From the left are Maguire, Jamah Prince, Globe high school sports editor Larry Ames, Lance Campbell and Scott Cody.

Cable corner

Cable's country sound

Music is the heart of The Nashville Network (TNN). Entertaining audiences both young and old with such artists as Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell, Ricky Scaggs and the Statler Brothers, TNN brings country music to your home on cable television's basic channel-line-up. TNN is the only television network producing live music programming six days a week.

Young adults are turning to TNN for a whole new sound from artists called "New Traditionalists". Premiering on "Nashville Now" and "New Country", these artists are blending bluegrass, gospel and country with rock and roll.

One of TNN's most celebrated programs is its Saturday evening line-up of "Grand Ole Opry Live Backstage" at 8 pm, followed by "Grand Ole Opry Live" at 8:30 pm. Beginning in the world's oldest, continuous running live radio show. It was first televised on a weekly basis by TNN in April, 1969.

In addition to its musical appeal, TNN also includes a variety of special interest programming. TNN regularly schedules in-depth features and specials for an entertaining look at the private lives of various public figures from Nashville, Hollywood or New York. There are tips for outdoorsmen, the latest in gardening techniques and unique travel show. Horse enthusiasts can keep informed on the world of championship American Quarter Horses.

Tune in to The Nashville Network on channel 35 in Cambridge and experience the pulse of country music. Included in American CableSystems' Consumer's Choice Basic package, TNN represents an alternative to other music and sports networks. For additional information call American CableSystems at 876-2323.
