

City of Cambridge

19.

IN CITY COUNCIL

December 22, 1997

COUNCILLOR DAVIS
VICE MAYOR BORN
COUNCILLOR DUEHAY
COUNCILLOR GALLUCCIO
COUNCILLOR REEVES
MAYOR RUSSELL
COUNCILLOR SULLIVAN
COUNCILLOR TOOMEY
COUNCILLOR TRIANTAFILLOU

RESOLVED: That this City Council go on record extending its congratulations to the Cambridge Police detectives on the arrest of Richard Kachadorian as outlined in the attached editorial.

In City Council December 22, 1997.

Adopted by the affirmative vote of eight members.

Attest:- D. Margaret Drury, City Clerk.

A true copy;

D. Margaret Drury

ATTEST:-

D. Margaret Drury
City Clerk

EDITORIAL

Cops persevere, make bust

Police officers are about the easiest of public employees to beat up on. They drink too much coffee, eat too many donuts, and make way too much money for standing over a pothole on a dead end street on "detail" in the name of public safety. We've heard them all before.

What we don't see or hear too often is about the perseverance of some cops who never give up on a case, no matter what the circumstance. When alleged murderer Richard Kachadorian skipped town a year ago, some figured he'd never be back. Others wondered what kind of effort would go into finding the killer of Laurence Cooper, a homeless man.

Unlike so many other tragic murders, Cooper was laid to rest without the company of good friends and family. It would have been easy to lose track of such a case. But the Cambridge Police Department's detective division didn't give up and on Tuesday got their man, Kachadorian, who they allege stabbed Cooper in the neck and heart.

Cooper had stumbled up Mass. Ave., leaving a blood trail for 70 feet before falling unconscious. Had he recovered, he would have thanked the Cambridge detectives. As should we.

176
Councillor Davis

Resolved

That this City Council go on record extending its congratulations to the Cambridge Police ~~Department~~ detectives
on the arrest of Richard KACHADORIAN
as outlined in the attached Editorial.

EDITORIAL

Cops persevere, make bust

Police officers are about the easiest of public employees to beat up on. They drink too much coffee, eat too many donuts, and make way too much money for standing over a pothole on a dead end street on "detail" in the name of public safety. We've heard them all before.

What we don't see or hear too often is about the perseverance of some cops who never give up on a case, no matter what the circumstance. When alleged murderer Richard Kachadorian skipped town a year ago, some figured he'd never be back. Others wondered what kind of effort would go into finding the killer of Laurence Cooper, a homeless man.

Unlike so many other tragic murders, Cooper was laid to rest without the company of good friends and family. It would have been easy to lose track of such a case. But the Cambridge Police Department's detective division didn't give up and on Tuesday got their man, Kachadorian, who they allege stabbed Cooper in the neck and heart.

Cooper had stumbled up Mass. Ave., leaving a blood trail for 70 feet before falling unconscious. Had he recovered, he would have thanked the Cambridge detectives. As should we.

EDITORIAL

Cops persevere, make bust

Police officers are about the easiest of public employees to beat up on. They drink too much coffee, eat too many donuts, and make way too much money for standing over a pothole on a dead end street on "detail" in the name of public safety. We've heard them all before.

What we don't see or hear too often is about the perseverance of some cops who never give up on a case, no matter what the circumstance. When alleged murderer Richard Kachadorian skipped town a year ago, some figured he'd never be back. Others wondered what kind of effort would go into finding the killer of Laurence Cooper, a homeless man.

Unlike so many other tragic murders, Cooper was laid to rest without the company of good friends and family. It would have been easy to lose track of such a case. But the Cambridge Police Department's detective division didn't give up and on Tuesday got their man, Kachadorian, who they allege stabbed Cooper in the neck and heart.

Cooper had stumbled up Mass. Ave., leaving a blood trail for 70 feet before falling unconscious. Had he recovered, he would have thanked the Cambridge detectives. As should we.

City of Cambridge

19.

IN CITY COUNCIL
December 22, 1997

COUNCILLOR DAVIS

RESOLVED: That this City Council go on record extending its congratulations to the Cambridge Police detectives on the arrest of Richard Kachadorian as outlined in the attached editorial.

Consent ORder #19

R-1585

Councillor Davis re: Congratulations to the Cambridge Police Detectives
on the arrest of Richard Kachadorian.

18

In City Council December 22, 1997

ORDER ADOPTED