ORIGINS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHIATRY A 25th Year Commemoration

The Department of Psychiatry at The Cambridge Hospital was established in 1969. Before that time the following individuals were the first ever employed by the city to provide psychiatric consultation, emergency, community and in-patient services to the citizens of Cambridge:

John E. Mack	Edward J. Khantzian	Peter P. Reilly
Patricia A. Carr	Lee B. Macht	James C. Beck
Melvin J. Stern	Susan E. Miller	Barbara B. Hauser
Mary Ann Lettau	Charles H. Wilber	Anthony Thornell
Richard Bickford	Thomas Downey	Penny M. Freedman
Lynn Power	Louella LaCombe	Holt Ruffin	John Latif

These innovative physicians, nurses, social workers, mental health workers and administrative staff worked tirelessly to introduce their vision of community mental health care to Cambridge. A unique multidisciplinary partnership was formed with The Health and Hospitals administration, under James B. Hartgering, volunteers and staff from The Massachusetts Mental Health Center, The Harvard Medical School, The State Area Board, and The Cambridge City Council, Fire, and Police Departments. That collaboration is evident in the strength and breadth of the department as it is known today in 1994.
