"Hopefully they understand what it means to operate a 20,000-square-foot store in an urban location serving a diverse clientele," said Boulrice.

Grenon is working out of the old Papa Gino's space to prepare for the take-over and $500,000 renovations, including new ceilings, floors and lighting, Boulrice said.

Boulrice would like to see the current work completed, said Boulrice, who added he would like to see the manager of Purity Super.

Miss Joe Manganaro, the longtime manager, has done an exemplary job keeping the store during a protracted period of uncertainty, said.

The store is owned by the Cifrinis, who also own the other Stop & Shop stores, Boulrice said.

library's summer reading mystery

What's the latest in the baffling "mystery" involving the Cambridge Public Library's Summer Reading Club? First a recap of "The Case of the Pinched Party Package."

On the night of May 27, the Summer Reading Club's final party package — the funds, fantastic food, award certificates and more — vanished after a big meeting at the Main Library.

Who took the party package? Where did they hide it? That's where young readers come in. The suspects were narrowed down to "Black-Eyed Susan" Flannery (library director), "Yowlin' Yo Yo" Ma (cellist), "Smilin' Sheila" Russell (mayor), "Rowdy Ron" Watson (police commissioner), "Pecos Bill" Weld (governor), and the Brazen Branch-Heads Gang. Mayor Russell has since been ruled out as a suspect.

There is reason to believe the goods have been stashed at one of the seven branches of the Cambridge Public Library. To help solve the caper, young readers are urged to sign up for the Summer Reading Club, read
