HEALTH

Hospitals offer depression info

National Depression Screening Day, Thursday, Oct. 5, will feature free depression screenings at both Mount Auburn and Cambridge Hospitals.

According to the National Institute of Mental Health, depression strikes 15 million Americans every year. Although treatment can help 80 percent of those who suffer from depression, only one in four depressed people seek treatment.

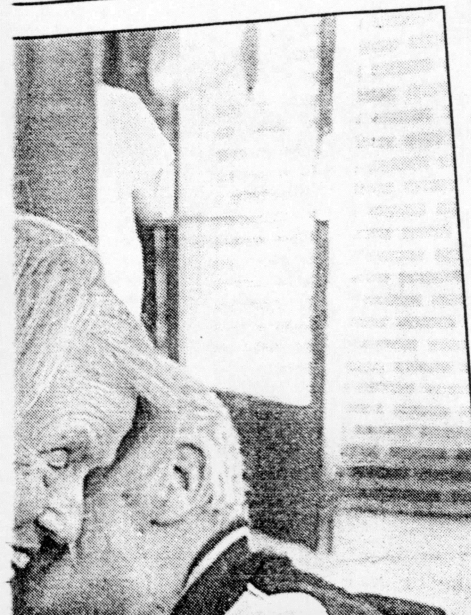

Participants will hear a brief talk and see a short film about depression. After filling out a confidential questionnaire, they will meet indi-limited and preregistration is recommended. Call 499-5098.

At Cambridge Hospital, free screenings will be held in two sessions — noon to 2 pm, and 6 to 8 pm — in the Macht Building Auditorium. Professionals who speak Spanish, Portuguese, Haitian Creole, and American Sign Language will be available.
