COUNCILLOR WALSH
COUNCILLOR WALTER J. SULLIVAN

- WHEREAS: With the death of Josephine (Vitale) D'Agostino on May 26, 1989 life in Cambridge became poorer without her presence; within the community, as within the life of her family, hers was the quiet outgoing presence of a source of powerful support; and
- WHEREAS: To her husband Americus, himself a familiar and respected neighbor and long time employee of the Commonwealth and former Commissioner of the Welfare Department in Cambridge, she was friend as well as wife, and, to her three daughters, was friend as well as mother; and
- WHEREAS: She gave flesh and blood to her conviction that a neighborhood is much more than a marked out section of a city map, it is where lives meet, where people respect mutual privacy and, at the same time strive and work together for the benefit of each other; now therefore be it
- RESOLVED: That this Council expresses sympathy to Josephine D'Agostino's husband, Americus J. D'Agostino, her daughters Eleanor Petrocchi, Jean Covino and Judith D'Agostino, and her six grandchildren in their hour of sorrow; and be it further
- RESOLVED: That the City Clerk be and is requested to prepare a duly engrossed copy of this Resolution for transmittal to the D'Agostino family.

In City Council June 5, 1989.
