Who was the cat's kind Samaritan?

We would like to give our heartfelt thanks to the kind people who assisted our yellow cat who was hit by a car on Thursday night, May 29, in the vicinity of Avon Hill and Linnaean streets.

Although one woman did call us in response to our signs in the neighborhood and told us about the accident, she didn't know the identity of the woman who stopped to help and who transported our cat to Angel Memorial Hospital in Jamaica Plan at 11 pm that night.

This good Samaritan did not leave her name at the hospital and we are writing in the hopes that she will see this letter. Sadly to say, our cat did not survive the accident, but we were grateful that we were able to find out what had happened to him.

Reconsider permit for Harvard St. hotel, 'before it is too late'

We, the undersigned, as representatives of the Harvard Street neighborhood, want to offer our appreciation to Cambridge city councilors for their unanimous acceptance of the Harvard Street downzoning proposal and to the Community Development Department and the Planning Board for their work in developing the proposal.

Unfortunately, we are still faced with the opening of a 14-room hotel at 288-290 Harvard St. at the site of a former lodging house for long-term residents. We do not understand why a license and a building permit were issued during the pending downzoning. We are a stable, residential neighborhood that will be adversely affected by a constant flow of thousands of transient guests, private cars, taxi cabs, and delivery and other service trucks related to this soon-to-be-opened commercial establishment.

We urge all relevant city agencies to reconsider this matter before it is too late.

Letter should not deter library planners

Library 21 was created by a city council order in March 1997. This committee was given the responsibility of making recommendations for the renovation and expansion of the main branch of the Cambridge Public Library on the present site.

Members of Library 21 have worked tirelessly for 13 months at great personal sacrifice. How unfortunate that the president of the Friends of Mid-Cambridge Park, Francis Spinks, chose to give his analysis of the situation before the committee had completed their work (Chronicle, June 5).

I trust his analysis, which contains distortions of the facts, will not discourage the committee or interfere with their determination to reach a consensus that will lead to final plans for the library so desperately needed.

The May 29 Chronicle featured an article which truly misleads the public on the actual crime and safety picture of the city of Cambridge.

The article conveniently ignores the fact that the crime and safety analysis prepared by the Cambridge Police Department does not include the statistics of both the MIT and Harvard University police departments.

These institutions represent thousands of Cambridge residents and police — a substantial part of our city. To eliminate their results from a report on crime in Cambridge deliberately offers an inaccurate picture of criminal activity in the city. In the future, the Chronicle and these three police units should compile their statistics to represent an honest picture of crime in the city.

Fiftieth reunion reveals that some things actually improve with age

GROWING OLDER
BY RICHARD GRIFFIN

What struck me immediately was how old everybody else looked. By contrast with me, classmates at the reunion, a celebration of our 50th anniversary of graduation from high school, appeared seriously marked by the passage of time. Most had lost a lot of head hair, some displayed prominent jowls, and others featured facial lines deeply etched by time's hand.

Of course, I am here deliberately indulging in a popular cliche, one based on a failure to recognize changes in oneself. The cliche is familiar because almost everybody who goes back to a reunion and looks around tend to feel this way. Aging is typically something done by everybody else, not by me. And its signs emerge as much more stark in contemporaries not seen for many years.

Beyond this initial impression, however, the wealth of experience my classmates brought to our cocktail parties and dinner surprised and impressed me. As might have been predicted, even those whom I remember as still uncertain adolescents in the classroom have turned out to be reliable and skilled adults. Aging has improved most of us notably; the transit from youth to maturity has produced fully formed human beings who can now draw upon rich human experiences.

For example, one of my classmates regaled me with stories of his early career as pilot of Air Force fighter planes. George flew at night, often with the assignment to keep track of Soviet bombers flying over Japan. His daring and dangerous adventures fascinated me in part because they were hard to fit with the still developing boy I had known long ago in school.

This 50th reunion of graduates from St. Sebastian's Country Day School stirred up surprisingly little nostalgia. In large part that's because we old boys gathered, not at the Newton site where the school used to be, but rather in Needham where it moved some 35 years after our graduation.

Much else has changed: In the current era the title "country day school," no longer politically correct, has been unceremoniously dropped. The campus is altogether more spacious than what we knew in Newton we had only one playing field while current students now boast several. Currently a new classroom building is under construction with much more space for arts and library books than were available to us.

Years ago St. Sebastian's added grades 7 and 8; tuition, instead of the $350 our families paid each, has now surpassed $16,000; and long since, all faculty members have been lay people rather than priests of the Archdiocese of Boston as they were during our student days.

Most significant perhaps, the headmaster is now a layman, a dynamic leader who provides the school with much more vigorous direction than we ever knew. To interested listeners he sets forth the school's mission clearly and emphatically; to form students in the life of the mind and the spiritual life as well.

His board of directors is largely lay, as well, and they raise money effectively. To this alumnus making a first-time visit to the current campus, the school seemed an institution which serves students well and in a focused way. It looks to me like a place with a promising future, worth the support of alumni and others.

My reason for sharing these details with readers is to draw a moral. Contrary to what we often think, especially when we reach late life, some things do not get worse but actually improve with time. My high school serves as a good case in point. The St. Sebastian's of 1997 strikes me as far better than the one we graduated from in 1947.

It shows itself more serious about the academic life. During my student days the school absurdly overemphasized athletics to the detriment of studies. Our football team looked like the prep school version of the Green Bay Packers and our hockey players looked ready for the Boston Bruins (not then the doormat they have become).

An openness of spirit characterizes the St. Sebastian's of today, a sympathy for other traditions that stands in sharp contrast to some of the narrow past. The school now wishes to attract both students of color and those who do not come from Catholic families. In my time there, this would have been almost unthinkable.

In an earlier column I quoted from Carolyn Heilbrun's new book "The Last Gift of Time: Life Beyond Sixty." There she warned: "The young are bored to tears by accounts of the past; it seems to them always to be recalled as better or harder, or more honorable than the present."

And to her remarks I added my own: "I take care not to paint the past as inevitably worse."

Though, like other elders, I take pleasure in mining the past for its rich lode of accomplishments, I refuse to become merely a laudator temporis acti ("Praiser of time past"), to use a phrase of the Latin poet Horace. In celebrating my reunion, I recognize that at least this institution, once important in my life, had improved itself over time.

We elders do well to rein in the ancient prejudice felt by a lot of older people, the prejudice that everything was better "in the good old days" and can only be be expected to get worse. The truth is this: Our juniors are not always doing an inferior job in running the world. Sometimes, to everyone's benefit, they even manage to improve on our accomplishments.

Elder Services invites community to gala 25th birthday party

Somerville-Cambridge Elder Services (SCES) will celebrate its 25th anniversary at a community gala on Thursday, June 19, 3-6 pm at St. Anthony's parish hall in Cambridge. Since 1972, the agency has been promoting the dignity and well-being of thousands of elders in Cambridge and Somerville by providing essential services that improve their quality of life and allow them to maintain their independence.

SCES volunteers, staff, clients, supporters, community leaders, service providers and older residents of Cambridge and Somerville will gather for an afternoon of fun and reflection. Festivities include performances by the Commonwealth Jazz Quartet and Back Porch Dance Company, as well as readings of city and state proclamations honoring SCES's contributions to the community. Creative art and writing projects by local elementary school students depicting their older friends and relatives will also be featured.

Refreshments and birthday cake will be provided through the generosity of local restaurants and caterers. First Seniority/Harvard Pilgrim Health Care is sponsoring the event.

Reservations are required and can be made by calling SCES at 628-2614, ext. 611. This number can also be called to arrange transportation for elders.

They're over 90, but still going strong

One of the highlights of an interfaith concert to benefit a meals program at Mass. Ave. Baptist Church, was the presentation of the Rabbi Samuel Chiel Hunger Awareness Award to two loyal volunteers. Dorothy Gatherwright, 93, and Deacon Leslie L. Wood, 91, who are sister and brother, have been volunteering at the meals program since it opened its doors in 1989. Both are local residents and lifelong members of Mass. Ave. Baptist Church.

The concert to benefit Project Manna, the semi-weekly meals program at the church, was on May 8 and has been held each of the last eight years. Choirs from Newton Presbyterian Church, First Baptist Church of Newton, Kol Rinah, the Brothers and Sisters of Kuumba, Mizmor Shir and Newton's Myrtle Baptist Church joined the choirs of Mass. Ave. Baptist Church and Newton's Temple Emanuel.

Border Cafe Restaurant of Saugus and Cambridge received the award two years ago in recognition of its ongoing donation of full-course dinners to the meals program twice each month. In addition, Border Cafe announces that last November it raised over $6,000 for Project Manna. For more information, call Bette Winik at 964-8107 or 964-8109.

"Oh better than the minting
Of a gold-crowned king
Is the safe-kept memory of a lovely thing."
—Sara Teasdale

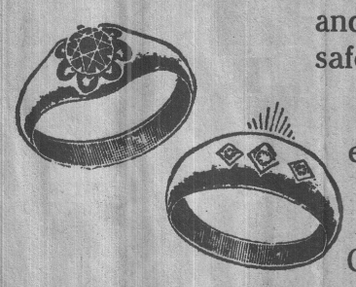

Is your safe deposit box itself about to become a memory, due to the closing of your local bank? If you need a new place to store some of your "lovely things," Cambridge Trust is at your service.

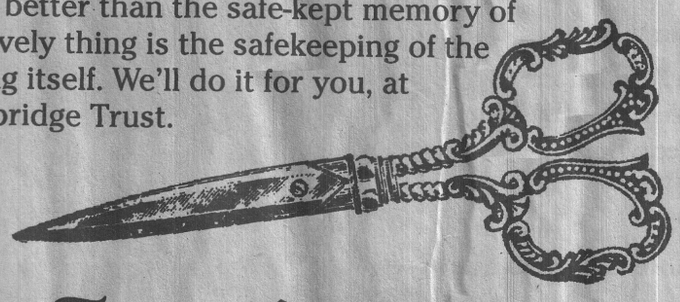

The safe deposit boxes at our Concord office are an ideal place to store your smaller valuables. We also offer storage lockers to keep your larger treasures out of harm's way.

Perhaps you've never rented a safe deposit box, but always intended to do so when you had the time. Why not take a little time when you may be less busy than usual, to gather together your important papers and other precious treasures, and put them into a safe deposit box or storage locker with us?

To enlarge upon Miss Teasdale's lines, perhaps even better than the safe-kept memory of a lovely thing is the safekeeping of the thing itself. We'll do it for you, at Cambridge Trust.

'Independent's Day' features otherwise unseen cinema

Over the past decade, the number of independent films produced each year has increased dramatically from low-budget films to semi-independent studio films. However, there are not enough venues for these works to be seen. For example, this past year the Sundance Film Festival received 2,500 film submissions for only 150 slots, a frustrating situation for these independent filmmakers who just want a chance for some exposure.

Last summer, at a workshop in Cold Springs, NY, a group of independent film producers, while talking about the current distribution problems and obstacles they all have in common, suddenly realized that there was this wonderful venue called "public access" right under their noses that maybe they could use to their advantage. So they created a nationwide promotional idea called "Independent's Day," which is being coordinated through Firefly Films in Newton.

"Independent's Day" is a 24-hour program of independent films (shorts and features) that will receive national distribution through cable access stations around the country in July. This "ID" program will be shown on the 25 largest cable access stations in the country all at the same time, and CCTV has been selected as one of them.

CCTV will cablecast this 24-hour program on Channel 19 from Monday, June 30, through Thursday, July 3; Monday, July 7, through Friday, July 11; and Monday, July 14, through Wednesday, July 16. A different tape will be shown each day starting at 9 am, and that same tape will be repeated on a continuous loop until 4 pm.

CCTV's next orientation will be Wednesday, July 2, 6:30 pm at 675 Mass Ave., corner of Prospect and Mass. Ave. (entrance on Prospect Street). For information, call 661-6900.

Council examining proposal that would mandate affordable units in new residential developments

As part of its ongoing effort to look for ways to provide affordable housing in the aftermath of rent control, the city council examined a report Monday that recommends it create a citywide zoning ordinance to mandate affordable units on any new projects.

The concept, called "inclusionary zoning," already exists in parts of Cambridgeport and in the Northpoint section of East Cambridge. But the proposal calls for such zoning use citywide in "market-rate residential developments."

"Although the city has several districts with inclusionary zoning provisions, most have not succeeded in generating the production of any affordable housing units," Susan Schlesinger, assistant city manager for community development, said in her report to the council.

The report did not specify exactly what percentage the city should require of developments. Schlesinger said her department will "commence immediately" with a study to make recommendations on a percentage.

The report was accepted and sent to the council's ordinance committee for review.

Among the recommendations:

- Replace most existing inclusionary provisions with the citywide plan.
- Apply it to all new residential developments with 10 or more units, and offer incentives for voluntary compliance in smaller projects.
- Affordable units should only be filled by low- and moderate-income residents.
- As incentive, provide complying developers with additional allowable density, twice the percentage of the required affordable units (20 percent bonus if 10 percent of the units are set aside as affordable, for example).
- Allow a developer to build offsite affordable housing or make in-lieu payments if the city "deems an affected development as unsuitable for affordable housing," the report said.

Soccer all-stars face off against older teams

An all-star cast from the Under-14 Boys Cambridge Lightning and Storm teams traveled to the Boston Globe John Smith 6-on-6 tournament in Marlboro on June 21-22. When the team arrived at the fields, the players were told that the other Under-14 Division 1 teams had not shown and that they would have to play in an older age group (under-16). The boys, although intimidated by the thought of facing older, larger and more experienced players, chose to play on.

Cambridge ended the first day of play with a first-place tie in their division after a close 3-4 loss to Groton-Dunstable, a 7-4 victory over Sutton, and a 5-2 victory over Plainville.

Nikias Stefanakis was high scorer for the tournament with five goals, while Micah Pierce, Aman Milner, Andrew Hamill, Anthony Fleurival, Ian Chester, Kabir Mukaddam and Tarek Salameh also contributed to Cambridge's offensive dominance with goals and assists.

Salameh, a sweeper, scored his first two goals of the season. On the defensive side, Salameh, Hamill, Adam Zeisel, Nick Petschek and Sebastiaan Kwakkenbos were strong, confounding older, larger players with great ball-handling skills and strategic moves. Collie Wendel did a great job with some spectacular saves on 16-year-olds' rocket shots.

Cambridge returned for the tournament's second day and started off with an early morning 4-2 victory against Dedham, the first-place winner of another division.

In the afternoon they faced Medfield, a very strong team that had knocked Dedham out of the tournament following the Cambridge game, and were joined by left-footed Lightning sharpshooter Jake Hannon.

Shortly after the game began, Cambridge goalkeeper Wendel was injured making a save, and while his left wrist was being taped, Stefanakis stepped into the goal and made another save. Wendel returned and continued with some spectacular saves, but Cambridge could not shut down Medfield and lost its final game 7-3.

Cambridge's goals were scored by Hamill (two) and Stefanakis, and Wendel got into the action with an assist on one of Hamill's goals.

While they didn't win the Under-16 Boys championship, they were Under-14 Boys Division 1 champs and showed courage and skill in competing head-to-head with older teams.

Bolts secure 1-1 tie

In the season's closing match, the Cambridge Under-12 Girls Lightning Bolts tied the much-improved Jamaica Plain squad 1-1. Although the Bolts had many scoring opportunities, Jamaica Plain presented a very tough defense when it counted most.

For Cambridge, Jenny Pittman and Sarah Isbitz provided especially solid defensive play. Serena Bartolucci put away the only Cambridge score with an assist by Jenny Imrich and a strong corner kick by Helen Sullivan. Jamaica Plain tied the score late in the first half by an unusual header shot off of a rebound.

The Lightning Bolts ended with a strong 6-0-3 record under the guidance of coach Nicole Hirsch and help from team manager Betsy Groves, and additional inspiration from Thelma, the team's chief fan.

To The Honorable, The City Council:

I am hereby requesting the appropriation and authorization to borrow $1,300,000.00 from the Massachusetts Water Pollution Abatement Trust (MWPAT) to finance the costs of confirming the exact locations of illegal sanitary services connected to storm drains and reconnecting those services to sanitary sewers. The first of phase of the project will focus on approximately 28 locations throughout the City.

The City will be reimbursed by the MWPAT as costs are incurred. The debt service on the loan will be financed through a combination of sewer service revenues and state subsidies similar to the previous loans which the City has received from the MWPAT.

Very truly yours,

Robert W. Healy
City Manager
