

And be it further

RESOLVED: That the City Council does also hereby express its sincere gratitude and appreciation to the hundreds of City employees – far too many to name here - who, in ways both great and small, did contribute inestimably to the success of the “Destination: Cambridge Initiative,” including skilled and dedicated employees of the Departments of Public Works, Inspectional Services, and Traffic, Parking and Transportation, as well as the Police, Fire and Electrical Departments, the Offices of Cable Television and the City Clerk, the Finance, Community Development and Human Services Departments, the Historical Commission, and the Arts Council; and be it further

RESOLVED: That the City Council further wishes to thank those two good men, City Manager Bob Healy and Deputy City Manager Rich Rossi, who shepherded the city through this process, with patience, skill and dedication; and be it further

RESOLVED: That finally, but by no means least of all, the City Council does wish to thank those individuals who gave so much of their own time and talents to this initiative, in thoughtful and invaluable ways, by not only serving on the Economic Development, Employment and Training Committee but further, by taking on greater roles to promote our great City and to showcase Cambridge at its very best:

WHEREAS: The effort to promote "Destination: Cambridge – The Unconventional City" has been, in every sense of the word, a truly collaborative and cooperative effort, bringing together, under the auspices of the City Council's Economic Development, Training and Employment Committee, city officials and employees, corporate partners, organizational and institutional interests, and concerned citizens to craft a plan to promote Cambridge as a unique and exciting destination with an array of social and cultural amenities; and

WHEREAS: From the outstanding social events, including an Art Fair in Harvard Square, a Salsa Concert, a Citywide Dance Party, the Central Square World's Fair, the Taste of Cambridge and "An Unconventional Parade," to the thoughtful discussions of timely policy issues including educational, affordable housing, and voting equity, citizens of all ages agree that the social events planned "Destination: Cambridge – The Unconventional city" were a resounding success, both in the number of participants and in the quality of the event itself; and

WHEREAS: Not only those involved in the planning and execution of these events, but those who participated as well, have expressed a desire that these events be scheduled annually to showcase the very best that Cambridge has to offer – an unmistakable sign of the true success of the "Destination": Cambridge" Initiative; now therefore be it

RESOLVED: That this City Council does first wish to thank those corporate and institutional partners whose provision of financial and other forms of support made possible the activities planned under the Destination Cambridge banner, including:
