The joint standing committee on Road & Bridges, who were directed by order of Nov 29. 1856 to consider the expediency and expense of widening the Main Street, from Harvard Street to Brooks buildings, have considered the same, and ask leave to

Report

That the committee are fully aware, that the improvement would be a very desirable one, one however which they are satisfied cannot be properly accomplished short of an expenditure of three thousand dollars, and believing there are other localities, where improvements are of more importance, and would better accommodate the public, the committee are not prepared to recommend such an expenditure the present season, but would recommend the adoption of the accompanying orders.
