WHEREAS: The "We've Got a Job to Do" Luncheon sponsored by the office of Workforce Development will be held Tuesday October 7, 1997 at the Hyatt Regency, Cambridge; and

WHEREAS: In collaboration with the Office of Workforce Development's Citywide Youth Employment Office and local youth employment programs, Cambridge employers hired 231 Cambridge teenagers during the summer of 1997; and

WHEREAS: Summer jobs are a vital way of building self-esteem for teenagers; have been demonstrated to be crucial components in how youth view their career and higher education possibilities, and if designed to include a learning component, can make it possible for teenagers to develop skills which are significant to success in post-secondary education and employment; and

WHEREAS: Supervisors who are committed, caring, have excellent supervisory skills, and have close working relationships with youth employment programs are an essential resource, which, when provided by employers, can make employment of teenagers tremendously productive for both teenagers and employers; and

WHEREAS: Supervisors of teenagers working at Carberry's Bakery, Douglas Okun and Associates and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the teenagers who worked for those employers, will be recognized at the "We've Got a Job to Do" Luncheon for their excellence; now therefore be it

RESOLVED: That the City Council expresses its continuing and enthusiastic support for this initiative, thanks the many Cambridge employers who hired Cambridge teenagers through it, and congratulates Matthew Carberry of Carberry's Bakery, Douglas Okun of Douglas Okun and Associates and Pat Mellman of the MIT Medical Center for their excellent work.
