City of Cambridge

The Ordinance Committee conducted a public hearing on Thursday, July 26, 1990 beginning at 6:12 p.m. in the Sullivan Chamber, City Hall.

Councillor Francis H. Duehay, Chair of the above referenced Committee convened the hearing and stated that the Committee would take testimony on a petition of the Planning Board to amend the text of Section 3.15 - East Cambridge Interim Planning Overlay District to remain in effect until September 30, 1990. The Chair then outlined several procedural points that would be followed in this date's proceedings. The entire membership of the City Council participated in this hearing.

Upon conclusion of the Chair's remarks Councillor Sullivan asked for suspension of the Rules in order to offer a motion. The Rules were suspended and the following motion was offered:

In Section 8.24.090 entitled Receptacles - Sidewalk Placement time restrictions of the Municipal Code in the First Sentence the wording "six p.m.," be stricken and insert the following wording "three p.m."

On a voice vote the motion carried.

Councillor Sullivan then offered the following motion:

That the Amendment be forwarded to the full City Council with a favorable recommendation.

On a voice vote the motion carried.

At this time the Chair introduced Mr. Michael Rosenberg, Assistant City Manager for Community Development for an explanation of the proposed amendment to the Zoning Ordinances. Accompanying Mr. Rosenberg was Ms. Elizabeth Fleming, Project Planner in Community Development.

Mr. Rosenberg outlined to the Committee the workings of the Advisory Committee appointed by the City Manager to study the Zoning in this area and to make recommendations to the Planning Board. After a considerable amount of time and energies being expended the Committee was not able to reach a consensus on this matter.

Since the time of the impasse being reached, the Chair of the Advisory Committee proposed that the Committee reconvene and see if a consensus could be reached within three weeks time. The Planning Board agreed with the request to reconvene but with guidelines.

Mayor Wolf inquired if the petition included the area surrounding the Transportation Building in Kendall Square. Mr. Rosenberg responded in the affirmative and stated that some affordable housing was possible since the Department of Transportation has expressed interest in this concept.

The Chair then requested if any member of the public wanted to speak in favor of the Petition.

Recorded as favoring the Petition was:

Mr. Hugo Salemme
89 Third Street
Cambridge, MA 02139

The Chair then requested if any member of the Public wanted to speak against the petition.

Recorded as opposing the Petition was:

Mr. Paul Casey
5 Westmond Avenue
W. Roxbury, MA
(Representing ComEnergy)

Upon completion of Public testimony Mayor Wolf made the following motion: That the Petition be forwarded to the City Council with a favorable recommendation.

The motion carried on a voice vote.

The hearing was adjourned at 6:26 p.m.

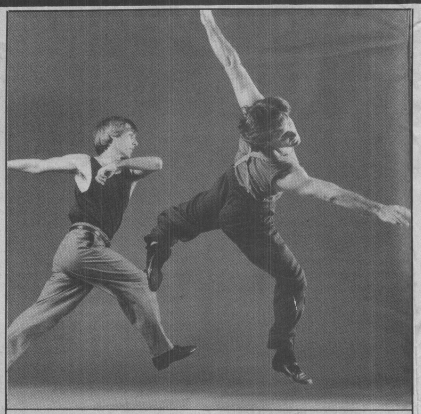
Rain date for city concert tonight

Local performers will take the stage tonight, July 19, at Hoyt Field in the first of four city-sponsored concerts this summer, following a postponement due to rain last week

Called "Summer in the City: Cambridge Chills," the program is the first summer music series sponsored by the city.

The concerts begin tonight with a three-hour show including performances by Dreamers Inc., a collection of local teenagers who perform a variety of acts; Something to Consider, described as a "jazz, rock and roll, soul and gospel revue;" the reggae band "Ambassa;" and Avitar Blue, a rhythm and blues band.

On July 26, the concert will travel to Glacken Field near Fresh Pond, where there will be performances by Hogs on Ice, Something to Consider, local rap group Adidas P. and M.C. Royalty, and the Boogaloo Swamis. Columbia Street park will host the third concert on Aug. 9, featuring Dreamers Inc., Diversity, and the I-Tones. The fourth concert will be at Donnelly Field in East Cambridge, with performers to be announced. For more information call the Cambridge Arts Council at 498-9033.



DANCERS Stephen Koester (right) and Terry Creach perform in "Beyond the Borders: A Concert of New Works," July 20-21 at 8 pm in Sanders Theater. Bill Evans, Margaret Jenkins, and Rinde Eckert will also dance.

Longfellow music series Sunday

On Sunday, July 22, the Musicians of the Old Post Road will perform "Chamber Music of Mozart" at the Longfellow National Historic Site, 105 Brattle St., in Cambridge. Concert locations are selected by the performers from those along the 300 year-old Boston Post Road, once a mail route from Maine to Florida. The Longfellow House is located on the route which passed from Cambridge to Watertown. All concerts in the Longfellow music series are outdoors on the lawn and are free. For directions and information call the National Park Service at 876-4491.

Boston Orchestra at Longy school

The Boston Summer Orchestra, led by co-director Derek Katz, will perform its final concert of the summer on Friday, July 27, at 8 pm at the Longy School of Music, 1 Follen St., Cambridge. The program includes music by Mozart, Rossini and Copland. Tickets are $6 at the door.

Art exhibits

■ Watercolors by Eudoxia Woodward, Constance Holden and Constance Kirwan, members of the Cambridge Art Association, will be on exhibit through the month of June at the Lowell Street Gallery, 25R Lowell St., Monday through Friday from 12-5 pm. Paintings by Richard Spector will be on exhibit through July at the University Place Gallery, 124 Mt. Auburn St., Monday through Friday, from 8 am - 6 pm, and Saturday from 9 am - 1 pm.

■ An exhibition documenting the transition of women's work from the home into the workplace during the 19th century is on exhibit at the Schlesinger Library at Radcliffe College from July 17 to Sept. 7. "Going to Work: A Visual History of Wage-earning Women in the Nineteenth Century" includes 59 wood engravings from the pictorial press, selected from the Clara Goldberg Schiffer collection.

Cable special

Cambridge Inside-Out, a local talk show and political analysis program which airs on Continental Cablevision channel 3, will have a one-hour live program on Tuesday, July 24, at 7:30 with special guest Eliot Spalding, former editor of the Cambridge Chronicle.

Open call for Cambridge extras

Remember "Spenser for Hire"? Well a new series is coming to town and its full of Cambridge talent. "Against the Law" will be seen next fall on Sunday nights on channel 25, a Fox network, and the Cambridge casting company Collinge/Pickman Casting is looking for residents who would like to appear as background extras.

The open call for extras is going out to anyone over 18. Those interested should go to 138 Mt. Auburn St. on July 19-20, from 6 to 10 pm, or on Saturday, July 21, from 8 am to noon. Photos, if available, are requested, and minorities and older residents are especially encouraged to attend.

The pilot that led to the series was directed by 20-year Cambridge resident Jan Egleson. Egleson has directed three independent features starring Cambridge young people and recently directed "A Shock to the System" starring Michael Caine. Egleson's wife is Patty Collinge of Collinge/Pickman. Carolyn Pickman also lives in Cambridge as does one of the main cast members, Gustave Johnson. Adam Wolf, son of Mayor Alice K. Wolf, also was involved in the pilot program.

Clubs, etc.

■ Myanna will be leading off this week's jazz series at Lai Lai Chinese Restaurant, 700 Mass. Ave., tonight at 9:15 pm. Frank Williams and Eula Lawrence with Visions will be playing on Friday and Saturday, July 20 and 21. Call 876-7000 for more information.

■ Brazilian jazz vocalist Olga Roman will bring her talents to a free concert at the Charles Square courtyard, 5 Bennett St., on Wednesday, July 25, at 6 pm. The concert is part of the sixth annual "Jazz on the Square" sponsored by Bud Light, WBOS-FM, and the shops at Charles Square. Rain date is set for the following evening.

■ Wildest Dreams will perform their world beat, calypso, reggae and soul music to the First Church of Cambridge, 11 Garden St., on Saturday, July 21, from 8 til midnight.

■ The Middle East Restaurant will host a fundraiser on July 26 to benefit the Mary A. Defense Fund, which was set up to help pay legal fees for a pro-choice demonstrator cleared of charges stemming from a conflict with an anti-abortion protester in Brookline in January. The benefit concert begins at 8 pm features Bristols, tres Bolino and the Ex-Girlfriends. Tickets are $7 at the door.

■ The funk and world beat music of Shockra can be heard tonight, July 19, at T.T. the Bear's on Brookline Street in Central Square. Joining them will be Widespread Panic from Athens, Ga.

■ Comedian and actor Franklyn Ajaye will headline at Catch A Rising Star, 30 JFK St. in Harvard Square, from July 25-29. Also on the bill are comedians Julie Barr and Matt Graham. Ajaye, who has appeared on "The Tonight Show," "Late Night with David Letterman," and "The Arsenio Hall Show," has also had roles in "Car Wash," "Stir Crazy," "The Jazz Singer," and "Hollywood Shuffle." Tickets from $8 to $12. For more information call 661-9887.

Free poetry at Longfellow House

The National Park Service and the New England Poetry Club is sponsoring a poetry reading on Sunday, July 29, at 3 pm on the grounds of the Longfellow National Historic Site, 105 Brattle St. The program features a reading by novelist Ira Wood. Poet Tim Joyce will be performing music and poetry. For more information call 876-4491.

BUSINESS NEWS

Rotary changes location

Due to the recent fire at the Howard Johnson's Hotel, the Cambridge Rotary will hold its weekly luncheon at Holy Trinity Armenia Apostolic Church located at 145 Brattle St. The meetings take place every Thursday at 12:15 p.m.

Today, July 19, the Rotary Club of Cambridge will be hosting Mayor Alice Wolf. The topic of her presentation will be investing in our children. One of the responsibilities of the Mayor is to chair the Cambridge School Committee. Hosting Mayor Wolf will be Bill Bibbins, the 1990-91 chair of the program committee.

Cambridge Rotary would like to announce recent donations to Friends Forever, an organization which brings Catholic and Protestant children to the United States and American Medical Relief, which takes no longer needed medical equipment and makes donations to hospitals in third world countries.

Necco acquires Stark Candy Co.

New England Confectionery Co. of Cambridge said last week that it had acquired, through its DMA Acquisition Corp. subsidiary, the assets of Stark Candy Co.

Stark has facilities in Pewaukee, Wis., and Thibodaux, La., as well as the Mary Jane manufacturing plant in Watertown.

Necco President Domenic M. Antonellis announced the June 27 action in a statement, which said, "Necco with its fine candymaking tradition since 1847, is now being joined with another fine traditional candy company and looks forward to a bright future for two of the best confectionery companies in the industry."

Stores raise money for food pantries

Purity, Angelo's and Heartland grocery stores are helping to restock Salvation Army food pantries in Cambridge and throughout eastern Massachusetts.

"Our food pantries across the state are in great demand by people in need here in the commonwealth," siad Maj. Charles Williams, director of Salvation Army Social Services in Massachusetts.

Cajun Joe's to benefit homeless

A new Cajun Joe's restaurant at 1220 Cambridge St. will be having its grand opening from July 22-24, and owner Richard Gaines of Boston has offered to donate 10 percent of his net sales to the city for programs that benefit the homeless.

Gaines, who opened the store on May 29, said he got the idea soon after he opened the store. A problem with his refrigerators forced him to give away 2,000 pieces of fried chicken to area shelters, and he decided to do something similar on an annual basis.

There are eight Cajun Joe's located in the Boston area, according to a company spokesman, and Gaines' franchise is the first in Cambridge.

Vacancy rate stable

The Cambridge office vacancy rate rose slightly, from 13.4 percent to 13.5 percent for the first three months of 1990, according to a report by the real estate firm Cushman and Wakefield.

The level numbers were posted "despite strong leasing activity," according to Mark Winters, Cushman and Wakefield's Cambridge broker. Winters said "tenant activity was strong" during the first quarter and that fears of increasing vacancy rates in the East Cambridge-Kendall Square area have eased as a result of large new tenants moving in, including Thinking Machines, which took 147,700 square feet of space at Riverview II.

SAGE'S PROTEST — Jim Ray, a campus minister at Youngstown University in Ohio, pickets in front of Sage's in Harvard Square to encourage a Folger's coffee boycott.

Sage's targeted by protest

Protesters demanding a boycott of Folger's coffee staged a demonstration at Sage's grocery store in Harvard Square on Monday, July 16. The protesters claimed the store has not joined the boycott, which is aimed at putting pressure on the government of El Salvador to improve its record on human rights.

50 protesters organized by Neighbor to Neighbor, a national group which has organized the boycott, marched down Brattle Street to Sage's carrying signs and urging customers to stop shopping at the store until Sage's honors the boycott. Some protesters carried crosses with the names of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her daughter who were killed in El Salvador last year. Government soldiers are suspects in the killings.

Charles Sage, president of the Edwin R. Sage company which owns and operates four stores in Cambridge and others outside the city, said he pulled Folgers off the shelves last week, although demonstrators said they had seen the product in some stores this week. Sage said he removed the product at the request of those demanding a boycott.

Debbie Lee, an intern at Neighbor to Neighbor, said the organization hopes to meet with Sage this week to discuss the boycott.

Sallie Mae plans to acquire city firm

The Student Loan Marketing Association of Washington, D.C., known as Sallie Mae, said it has signed an agreement to acquire University Loan Services Inc. of Cambridge for an undisclosed amount.

Sallie Mae, the nation's largest investor in insured education loans, said the acquisition would reinforce its ability to service loans it acquires from New England lenders. University Loan Services of Cambridge is a privately-held company that services student loans for banks and other lenders.

Sallie Mae officials said they would operate University Loan Services as a wholly owned subsidiary and that all 91 of the firm's employees would be retained.

Cambridge Food Co-op hits the street

one vote per member (rather than one vote per share).

Most members of the Cambridge Food Co-op may not be able to recite the Rochedale Principles, but they pay homage to the Pioneers' spirit on a daily basis.

"My vision about what a co-op is has to do with people participating," said Gilbertson, who worked in co-ops for twelve years before joining the Cambridge store a year ago. "Food dollars are such a large part of one's budget. I like to see people realize they have some power."

Empowerment takes many forms at the Co-op, especially for the 1,400 members who are technically "owners." The $150 refundable equity payment expected of each member may be reimbursed over a period of three years under various payment plans and it is reduced to $50 for seniors and people of low income.

Benefits accrue with the first payment. The basic privileges include voting yearly for the board of directors, receiving monthly member appreciation coupons, participating in a discount program linking 40 local businesses, and reduced prices at the register. Members who work for the Co-op receive from 8 to 20 percent off all purchases; non-workers get 2 percent off.

A majority of shoppers are now members, whereas in the recent past the numbers of member and non-member customers were about even. Shortt attributes this growth to the move.

"It's galvanized people to show support," said Shortt, who has been involved with co-ops for twenty-five years. He was hired by the Cambridge Food Co-op in November 1988 as a management consultant and has been the prime mover in the Co-op's expansion and relocation project.

Co-operative grocery stores have long been a staple of underground and alternative cultural movements. They have acquired, along with a small but loyal following, a reputation for cherishing offbeat lifestyles and diverse constituencies, as well as for being places one can depend on for organic, exotic and healthful foods.

"I like to support the co-op philosophy," said Lori Factor, selecting from among the Co-op's dazzling array of herbs and spices. "Just as important is the selection, along with price — the healthy stuff, and bulk," she added, naming the elements that have kept her a Co-op member for six years. "You can't find this stuff at the big markets."

In discussing the Co-op with those who know it best, words like "choice" and "accessibility" crop up again and again.

"We are accessble," Gilbertson asserts. "You can get involved. There are all sorts of levels of involvement. And if you don't like something, you can change it."

An important aspect of the move to 579 Mass. Ave. is the desire to make the store available to seniors, people in wheelchairs and others who have difficulty navigating stairs.

Expansion also means the store will be more accessible to people with varying tastes. Gilbertson takes pride in the fact that the store, even now, provides a variety of options while trying hard to address the political concerns inherent in the purchase and distribution of food.

Buying grains and spices in bulk, for instance, is attractive to many customers who consider it ecologically as well as economically sound. But many packaged, portion-controlled products are available as well.

Kenji Oshima, a four-year member, states his motivation for "shopping Co-op" succinctly.

"It's cheap; it's a co-op. I'd rather see my money go back into the community than into someone's pocket," Oshima said.

As important to shoppers and staff as variety, price and economic empowerment is a certain ineffable quality that permeates the co-op's atmosphere.

It consists mostly of small things, like the community notice board, where one can find a housemate, sell a dulcimer or learn about an upcoming political rally. It is to be found at the cash register, where one easily strikes up a conversation with a neighbor or the cashier — which might be the same person.

"We're neighborhood service-oriented," Gilbertson said. "Those are our origins and that's what ends up as policy. This is a concerned and vocal community and that's reflected in the co-op."

Gilbertson feels that this is one of the striking differences between the Co-op and surrounding grocery stores, particularly large franchises. An attempt is made to reach "the individual, local and global person" in each customer, she said.

Shortt acknowledged that while the relocation has received almost universal support, there is a lingering anxiety that doubling the amount of selling space to 10,000 square feet will diminish the Co-op's intimacy and charm.

"Our idea is that the Co-op maintains its special elements," said Shortt, although he admitted that the place will definitely have "a new feel."

New features will include a service deli, full meat and fish departments and extensive frozen and refrigerated sections. Care will be taken to create a comfortable environment by appropriate use of wood, color and lighting, according to Shortt.

Yes, the community board will remain, Shortt promised. Moreover, the new storefront will generate novel channels for interaction with the neighborhood. For instance, the store's entryway will include space for street merchants to display handcrafted jewelry, clothing and other goods.

Gwen Brown, who said she has been shopping at the Co-op since it opened in 1974, will certainly welcome the change.

"It'll be nice when they open the new place and I'll not have to climb those stairs," said Brown, who has visited the store about once a week despite this obstacle.

Employees are also looking forward to the expansion. Produce manager Joe DiBlasi has been with the Co-op two years as of this week.

"We have to get out of this hole here," said DiBlasi, whose family has been in the fruit business for three generations. "If you want to grow, you've got to move up. You can't be in the basement your whole life."

The staff has put up a note board for customers to sound off on what they'll miss and what they won't mind leaving behind about the old Co-op. Their comments are telling.

They won't miss "our periodic floods." They're more than willing to kiss goodbye "those god-awful stairs," or "the charming dungeon-like quality of the place."

But one anonymous scribbler speaks for many in bidding a sad farewell to "the personality and earthy charm of the place." Another, a touch more positive, manages to say quite a lot by saying simply: "I'll miss the family feeling — but good luck!"

To what extent the Cambridge Food Co-ops character changes or stays the same will depend a lot on what Gilbertson calls the Co-op's "mission statement." She admits that she and others have been agonizing over the formation of this statement for some time.

"Who are we?," Gilbertson asks. "What are we doing and why are we doing it?"

If these have been questions in the past, they will no doubt recur and redouble as the Co-op plunges into its next phase.

Regatta at condos aids child-abuse group

A scale-model boat regatta at Thomas Graves' Landing Condominiums in East Cambridge in Cambridge on June 24 raised more than $1,400 for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Contributions were raised in a drawing for various donated gifts at the event, held to show off the new CambridgeSide development, Thomas Graves' Landing and the Lechmere Canal.

A grand prize of a cruise down the Nile River was won by Thomas Graves' Landing resident Marilyn Antoine.

IF YOU WANT TO READ THE WHOLE THING!

When you buy a house, you're asked to sign an amazing number of documents, especially if you're obtaining a mortgage. While it may seem prudent to read all of these papers before signing, it may not be practical to do this at the settlement. If you're the type who really does have to read everything first, we have some suggestions.

In an ideal world, the settlement attorney would have everything ready for your perusal several days before the big event. What often happens, however, is the lender delivers the paperwork to the settlement office at the last minute — sometimes later than that. If you insist on reading everything, including all fine print, you'll probably draw some serious groans from the others at the table. One solution is to request copies of all of the standard forms a week before settlement, since most of the papers are boiler plate. Then at settlement, you just check to ensure the blanks were correctly filled in.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professionals at Silva Realty are ready to serve you. Call us at 776-6464 or drop by our office on 371 Somerville Avenue at Union Square in Somerville.

Clay rolls snake eyes in 'Ford Fairlane'

The Adventures of Ford Fairlane (Renny Harlin). With Andrew Dice Clay, Wayne Newton, Priscilla Presley, Ed O'Neill, Morris Day, Gilbert Gottfried, Robert Englund, Maddie Corman and Lauren Holley.

By PAUL SHERMAN

Those guys who take their shirts off at football games in December finally have a movie just for them. "The Adventures of Ford Fairlane," which gives strutting comedian Andrew Dice Clay his first starring movie role, salutes macho gestures of that sort as if they were badges of honor.

But the Diceman rolls snake eyes in "Ford Fairlane." This is the sort of movie that begins as a parody, but then seems to forget it's a send-up, only to remember and start desperately trying to cram in gags after all the fun has gone out of the story.

Clay plays the title character, an L.A. private detective who works in the music industry and fancies himself, in his own words, an "ultra-cool super rock hero." Ford Fairlane walks into an L.A. rock club, fields come-ons like Brooks Robinson fielded grounders, beats up a sleazeball and socializes with the music industry upper crust. Hey, even this guy's hair swaggers.

Only something's missing — the laughs. Starting with a voice-over from Fairlane which is supposed to be a take-off on all the 1940s films which used the same storytelling device, this movie simply doesn't know how to be funny. It doesn't develop any comic style, it never lets Fairlane bounce dialogue off a formidable character (you'd never know the script was by Daniel Waters, who did the super-acerbic "Heathers") and it's way too plot-heavy.

The early action tosses in some one-liners — after bedding a pair of twins, they say, "We just needed to be held" and he replies "You got the bonus plan" — but the comedy never develops because the situations are funny. And once the story gets deeper, there's just no room to be funny.

The convoluted plot has Wayne Newton as a record-label honcho, Priscilla Presley as his avaricious ex-wife, Maddie Corman as a brain-dead teen groupie who may hold the key to some industry corruption and who's "the only guy who could out-disgust" Fairlane. But Newton's, Morris Day's and Ed O'Neill's roles are poorly written and Corman's part could have been an effective send-up of an MTV brain-dead bimbo, but is an immediately disposable character.

Worst of all, "The Adventures of Ford Fairlane" isn't fun. Only those who want to be like the Diceman will want to spend two hours with this story.

Gilbert Gottfried as a DJ friend of Fairlane's who gets killed on the air.

Throw in three rowdy henchmen — one completely overacted by Robert "Freddy Krueger" Englund — and there's never anything in the story to care about.

Clay isn't really good or bad here, he's just playing the comic persona that he created, but which he actually played with better results as a supporting character in 1988's "Casual Sex?" He was able to bring a more human edge to the brash persona in that film, but when "Ford Fairlane" tries to do that it comes out like, as the movie tries to laugh it off, "sentimental bull."

It's hard to care about the character when the whole first half-hour keeps asking you to like the guy because he's a jerk. He abuses women — ha, ha! He talks to his crotch — ha, ha! He acts like God's gift to the world — ha, ha! I don't think so.

Movies that glorify jerks are nothing new (Tom Cruise has built a career on them), and this is no more likable than any of the others. The deep supporting cast is largely misused, since so many characters fight for your attention that few stand out. Gottfried is his usual manic self as a shock-radio DJ

Biba: A temple to the fine art of food

By DAVID TRUEBLOOD

BIBA: 272 Boylston St., Boston. Telephone 426-7878.
HOURS: Lunch 11:30 am to 2:15 Monday through Friday and Sunday; dinner, 5:30 to 9:30 pm Monday through Thursday and Sunday, 5:30 to 10:30 pm Friday and Saturday.
CREDIT CARDS: Major cards accepted.
SMOKING POLICY: Smoking section provided.
HANDICAPPED ACCESS: An elevator provides full access.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing at Biba is how many spectacular pieces fit together without a sense of overload. A friendly informality eases the magnificence of the setting and the soaring fancies on the menu are brought down to earth by an utter lack of pretense and a dash of humor.

But spectacular is the word here, no mistake.

We had the chance to explore the Boylston Street restaurant one recent evening at an epic birthday banquet in honor of Ted Paschkis, who created the company, Ocean Woodworks in Kendall Square, that created much of the sumptuous interior of Biba.

If there is a single part of Biba that suggests the artistry that earned Paschkis a regional reputation, it is probably the staircase that coils up from the elegant first-floor bar to the dining room. The complex curved steps, made of light wood, are so beautifully scaled and set they seem almost understated. But a pair of scarlet-glazed, theatrically curved wooden handrails sparks the whole design with an opulence that is utterly contemporary and a grandeur without pomposity.

The menu sustains the art of that entrance, and its audacious quality, too.

Chef Lydia Shire organizes her food thematically rather than by course. Fish with fish, meat with meat, and so on. Prices mark the difference between appetizers and entrees, but some appetizers are on the generous side. We'd recommend talking the whole thing through with your waiter to get the size and balance you want to your meal.

Prices, by the way, are remarkably low, considering what you get. Some items are intrinsically precious and priced accordingly, such as the ossetra caviar, an ounce of which is served on a crisp potato and chive matafan for $28. But this is not the sort of place that charges a premium just because it can get away with it — although it could — and it would be quite possible to have a full meal here for less than $35 for one person.

We started out with the caviar and a dish of calves brains with crisp fried capers and sherry vinegar, for $9.50. The latter is listed under the "Offal" section of the menu — that's offal as in viscera.

Calf brains are one of the foods most associated with Shire, and on this menu she also offered them in a pastry roasted with red onions and rack of lamb as an entree.

The distinctive touch in the caviar dish was the matafan, a sort of crisp crepe. Its warm, homely flavor, graced with the light touch of chives, is a perfect foil for the rich and salty caviar. The calves brains also offered mixed — but not blended — qualities. The meat has a distinctively intense and savory flavor, punctuated by the salty capers and given a sensational flourish with the astringent sherry vinegar.

The homely touch appears in a number of places on the Biba menu with whimsical items such as "tater tots" for $3, hardly a staple of first-class restaurants. Or onion rings. Or mashed potatoes.

But we are here to testify that Lydia Shire can turn out a sublime tater tot. As with the onion rings, she takes something debased and conventional and redeems it. There is a basic point being made here, as well. Great food is the product of great art and hard-earned skill and it can express itself as well using familiar and mundane materials as it can with exotic ingredients.

For entrees, we sampled a crisp duck with chanterelles and dried wild cherries for $22 and a lobster with Thai spices for $28.

The latter is pungent and spicy. The light and flavorful vegetable part of the dish makes a good complement to the rich chunks of lobster meat. Lobster is also available as an appetizer, in a simple ceviche for $12.

The duck leans toward the sumptuous end of the culinary spectrum. The chanterelles provide a complex dusky flavor to the duck, which is served in an intense brown sauce. The tart, sharp cherries set the richness of the duck off perfectly. The three elements are strikingly different, but the dish is a harmonious whole.

Dessert is a hard thing to contemplate after such a feast, and desserts at Biba are anything but austere.

Offered up in the name of sensual self-indulgence are such items as a mocha java granite, a meringue of chocolate with chocolate and cherry ice cream and homemade candies. We sampled the napoleon of white chocolate and summer berries.

Even after an evening of caviar and calves brains, duck and lobster, the napoleon was irresistable. Crisp wafers of pastry were stuffed with fresh berries, a very different thing from the sugary, overupholstered napoleons that have given the pastry a bad reputation elsewhere.

With characteristic understatement, Shire calls Biba a "Food hall." Food temple would be closer to the mark.

STREET WORK

The city's public works department has announced the following streets will be affected by road work the week of July 15:

Bank, Brewster and Kirkland Street near the corner of Trowbridge Street — New concrete sidewalks.

Bishop Allen Drive — Full-depth excavation of roadway.

Douglass, Essex and Norfolk streets; Murray Hill Road; Pleasant Street from Mass. Ave. to Western Ave.; Sunset Road from Griswold Street to Normandy Street — Grind and overlay streets.

Fulkerson Street; Saville Street from Walden to Appleton Street — New concrete sidewalk; grind and overlay street.

Thorndike Street — New brick sidewalk; plant trees, install new park benches.

Linden, Norfolk, Blakeslee, Sargent and Fulkerson streets; Bishop Allen Drive; Upland Road — Commonwealth Gas Co. will install new gas lines; homeowners may request outside meters from the gas company during the work.

The city's street sweeping schedule this week is:

Thursday and Friday, July 12-13 — District E, both sides: All streets in the area from Western Avenue to Dunster Street, River Street to Mass. Avenue.

July 16-17— District F, both sides: All streets in the area from Roseland Street in Porter Square to Beacon Street, including Oxford, Beacon and Kirkland streets.

July 18-19 — District F, both sides: All streets in the area bounded by Porter Square, Alewife Brook Parkway and the Somerville line, including Mass. Avenue to Clifton Street.

July 20 — District H, odd side: All streets in the area bounded by Waterhouse St. to Richdale Ave., Mass. Avenue to Sherman St.

anywhere," she said.

Berlin was the only cyclist riding for AIDS; other causes included the American Lung Association and the American Cancer Association. She raised a total of $9,880, of which $3,700 will go to Cambridge Cares About AIDS.

Donations are still trickling in, and Berlin hopes to give as much as $5,000 to Cambridge Cares, which will hold a reception today, July 12, from 4:30 to 6 pm in the Macht Building Auditorium at Cambridge Hospital on Cambridge Street.

"We wanted to thank her for coming out of nowhere to help Cambridge Cares About AIDS," said Jennifer Burgess Wolfrum, director of Cambridge Cares, a non-profit arm of the Cambridge AIDS Task Force which raises money for care and education.

Berlin, who did the trip primarily to raise money, unexpectedly developed a liking for long bicycle rides as well. "I'm not a cyclist and I didn't know if I liked it enough to spend 48 days on a bike, so it was kind of a nice thing that I also learned that I really enjoy cycling."

She also saved the fiscally-strapped state some money — her salary for three months. "It was a good time to take an unpaid leave of absence."

Pedal for Power organizes fund-raising rides from coast-to-coast and North-South treks from Maine to Florida. Pedal for Power is sponsored by the 110-year-old League of American Wheelmen. For more information call 1-800-762-BIKE.

PLANNING BOARD

CITY HALL ANNEX, 57 INMAN STREET, CAMBRIDGE 02139

June 21, 1990

To the Honorable, the City Council;

Subject: Rezoning Petitions to Extend the East Cambridge and Cambridgeport Interim Planning Overlay Districts

The Planning Board hereby submits for City Council consideration two rezoning petitions to extend the effective dates of the East Cambridge and Cambridgeport Interim Planning Overlay Districts to September 30 and November 30, 1990, respectively. The Planning Board, community residents and property owners have been working diligently since the last extension to fashion zoning recommendations that can achieve significant support from all those affected and at the same time meet the City's long-term interests in sound planning. The effort has proven extraordinarily challenging; the balancing of many, frequently conflicting interests has not been easy but progress is evident and the policy choices that must be made are now much clearer. Nevertheless, additional work is needed before comprehensive recommendations can be made to the Council for permanent zoning for these two important districts. The accompanying schedule will guide the Board's work program over the next several months.

Respectfully submitted for the Planning Board,

Paul Dietrich, Chairman

A. Amend the text of the Zoning Ordinance by deleting paragraph 5, Section 3.15 - East Cambridge Interim Planning Overlay District, and substituting therefor a new paragraph 5 to read as follows:

> 5. This Section 3.15 shall be in effect through September 30, 1990.

B. Amend the text of the Zoning Ordinance by deleting paragraph 5, Section 3.14 - Cambridgeport Interim Planning Overlay District, and substituting therefore a new paragraph 5 to read as follows:

> 5. This Section 3.14 shall be in effect through November 30, 1990.
