Milton Katz*Harvard Law professor and resident*

Milton Katz died Aug. 9 at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston. He was 87.

He was born in New York, NY, and lived in Cambridge for many years. He graduated summa cum laude from Harvard College in 1927 and graduated magna cum laude from Harvard Law School in 1931. After graduation, he worked as a law clerk for US Circuit Court Judge Julian W. Mack. From 1933 to 1935 he was with the National Recovery Administration and spent three years as assistant to the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. In 1938-39, he saw government service as special assistant to the US attorney general. He then worked as solicitor for the War Production Board.

In 1943, he entered the Navy as a lieutenant commander and served in the Mediterranean and European theaters. In 1948, he was named general counsel for the Economic Cooperation Administration in Europe. Two years later he succeeded W. Averell Harriman as US special representative to the Marshall Plan countries in Europe, where he was responsible for most technical programming of Marshall Plan aid, first as deputy to Harriman and later as top man.

At the same time he also headed the US delegation to the Economic Commission for Europe and was chairman and US member of the Defense, Financial and Economic Committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). He left government service in 1951 to become associate director of the Ford Foundation, a post he held until 1954 when he became the first Henry L. Stimson Professor of Law at Harvard and director of its International Legal Studies Program.

Colleague and former student, Harvard Law School Professor Charles Ogletree, said, "Some of my most treasured moments at Harvard are based on sitting in his Torts class in 1975. He really was the quintessential Harvard Law School professor: intelligent, focused, caring, committed and concerned about his students."

During his later years on the Harvard Law School Faculty, he shifted the focus of his teaching to constitutional law. He also became absorbed in the interactions of science, technology, government and law. Consequently, he was a consultant and chairman of the congressional Energy Advisory Committee of the Office of Technology Assessment, and was a member of various other science and technology committees.

He was an author of many books and legal articles on administrative law, government and the law, and international law and was a member of the Harvard Club of Boston, the Century Association (NY), the Examiner Club, the Harvard Travelers' Club and the Harvard Faculty Club.

He was the husband of Vivian (Greenberg) and father of John of Hartsdale, NY, Robert of Cambridge and Peter Katz of Newton. He is also survived by five grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were private, and a memorial service is being planned at Harvard University.
