Robert Goodell Hall, 84

Cambridge educator, publisher

Robert Goodell Hall, director and former headmaster of Manter Hall School in Cambridge and president of Educators Publishing Service Inc., in Cambridge, died Saturday of cardiac arrest at Youville Hospital and Rehabilitation Center in Cambridge. He was 84.

Born in Waltham, Mr. Hall lived most of his life as a resident of Sudbury. He graduated from Cushing Academy and Bentley College in 1930.

In 1932, he joined his father, John C. Hall, who started Manter Hall School, formerly the Widow Nolan School. After recognizing the merit of a number of his faculty members' teaching materials, he established Educators Publishing Service in 1955, specializing in supplementary texts for kindergarten through Grade 12.

Mr. Hall was a longtime member of the Orton Society for dyslexic children. He spent more than 60 years promoting and improving education, particularly for dyslexic children.

He leaves his wife, Eleanor (Thurston) of Sudbury; a son, John C. 2d of Cambridge; and two grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held tomorrow at 11 a.m. at the Memorial Congregational Church of Sudbury. Burial will be private.
