FLIP WILSON

Flip Wilson, 64; 1970s comedian known for 'Geraldine' character

By Jeff Wong
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES - In 1970, the news was filled with anti-war demonstrations and black power. On the nation's TV screens, Flip Wilson put on a wig and a minidress and became "Geraldine," who screeched: "What you see is what you get!"

He wasn't a spokesman for race issues, but Mr. Wilson broke racial barriers, becoming the first black host of a top television variety show.

Mr. Wilson died Wednesday of liver cancer at his Malibu home with his daughter, Michelle, by his side, said Angie Hill, the comedian's assis-odd jobs and developing a comedy act in small clubs. When Hollywood began to seek out black entertainers in the 1960s, his career turned.

Mr. Wilson made his TV debut on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" in 1965, which led to appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show" and "Laugh-In" and on the comedy series "Love, American Style."

A variety special in which he starred led to his own series, which earned him an Emmy for performing and one for writing in 1971.

The comedian was divorced about the time his show ended in 1974 and he won custody of his chil-

Elsie Burton Eagles, 88

Edited Story-A-Day magazine

Elsie Burton Eagles of Canton, a retired librarian and former editor of Story-A-Day children's magazine, died Tuesday at Caritas Norwood Hospital. She was 88.

Born in Dorchester, she was raised in Quincy and attended Quincy schools.

Ms. Eagles was a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and later worked at the Menninger Institute in Topeka, Kan.

During World War II, she worked with the American Red Cross and later worked for Voice Magazine in Washington.

She was also a librarian for many years in Westport, Conn., and at the Canton Public Library, from which she retired.

She served as an organizer in Brockton and Sharon churches.

She leaves two brothers, George of Orleans and David of Eastham, and a sister, Jeanne Aronson of Canton.

Her funeral will be held today 11 a.m. at St. Paul Episcopal Church in Brockton.

Ernest L. Pimental, 81

Was Plymouth restaurant owner

Ernest Louis Pimental, a retired restaurant owner, died Wednesday at his Plymouth home. He was 82.

Mr. Pimental was born, raised and educated in Plymouth. He served in the Navy during World War II in the Pacific and took part in the liberation of the Philippines.

In 1945, he established Ernest's Grille at the corner of Court and Church streets, a site it still occu-
